Mexico's Puzzle.
Mr. Rockefeller Has Fun.
Honor to Russia.
Kellogg's Happy Day.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928)

MEXICO with Obregon murdered finds itself in a puzzling, difficult position.

But Calles has the army, which means that he has Mexico. He will undoubtedly run the government until he chooses, through the Congress, a man to succeed him. Or a dictatorship might arise.

CONSERVATIVE Mexico and foreign capital dread the seizing of power by an ultra-radical labor group. But, again, Calles has the army and the army has the weapons, and uses them without hesitation.

THE young murderer of Obregon was evidently a political fanatic, quite willing to die, in carrying out a plan. His last note addressed "To my family" and signed Juan, read, "Knowing that I will die, in carrying out my principle, I bid you farewell."

Fortunately for peace and order, the instinct of self-preservation prevents the writing of many such notes. Each man's life comes first in his estimation. Wise Providence arranged it so.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, almost 90, enjoyed himself on Tuesday. He could not find an oil well, a diamond mine, or make 20 millions in a quick turn. That would not interest him.

He drove a coal wagon down the street in Oswego. With the driver's consent, he climbed to the high seat unaided, and was sorry to go back to his big limousine.

LEARN, oh little man, that there is happiness in the world outside of owning a billion dollars, or a big limousine. The interesting thing is doing something yourself, driving a coal wagon, or raising the most wonderful baby.

WHATEVER your opinion of Russia and her Bolshevism, you will notice this—Russia sent the ship and fliers that rescued the groups of men stranded hopelessly in the Arctic.

Except for the work of courageous Swedish fliers, Russia did all that was done. Other big European powers were content to watch the Russian ice breakers at work.

THIS is a happy day for Secretary Kellogg. Britain accepts his "no war plan," which now stands as an international agreement. Chamberlain was cheered as he announced British adherence in the House of Commons.

THE world knows that war does not pay, and fears another war, which might actually wipe out what we call civilization. But the question is, "Can you bind the nations by good resolutions?" You might, with resolutions, plus adequate preparation.

DR. JAMES B. MURPHY, of the Rockefeller Institute, tells the London cancer conference of a "growth substance" in nature that causes tumors to grow.

This substance, injected in chickens, has caused growth of tumors 90 times in 100.

It is hoped that where there is a growth substance there will also be found a growth PREVENTING substance.

Once discovered, that would conquer or check cancer growth.

GRADUALLY science draws closer to the cancer mystery. The healing of a wound is like a cancer growth, except that it stops when the healing work is done. The experiments with chickens are important, because, as explained to this writer at the Rockefeller Institute, the production of cancerous growth within the body of a chicken is so difficult as to be almost impossible. In only one case had it been possible to create cancer in a hen. There were scores of rats and mice, each with cancers artificially produced, bigger than the animal's bodies.

The chickens may yield the growth prevention substance.

IN Europe the thermometer has risen to 140. Had it risen to 240 everybody would have died, the blood literally boiling in their veins.

Temperature at the sun's surface equals many thousands of degrees, and deep inside the sun, under frightful pressure, it is hot beyond our imaginations.

WE SHOULD be grateful that our heat and cold are so well balanced, grateful especially for our wonderful bodies that keep the blood at about 98 degrees, on the Equator at 120 above, or in the Arctic at 60 below.

THE International conference of Communists at Moscow has an important idea.

Communism must get ready for a great war surely coming between the imperialism of Britain and America.

America and England, you see, will each want the whole world. When they fight, Communism will have its chance.

A FEW generations back, the idea might have been correct. But great nations and big business have learned that war does not pay, and what does not PAY does not interest them. If Communism waits for its chance until British and American imperialism fight, it will wait some time.

MINERS TO VOTE ON STRIKE END HERE

Union Drops Jacksonville Scale in Peace Move.

Fagan Arrives From Parley; Eager to See Men Return.

International News Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 19.—The policy committee of United Mine Workers of America was on record today as authorizing officers of various districts of the miners' national union to enter into wage negotiations with their respective operators with the view of settling the two-year-old bituminous coal strike upon any basis mutually satisfactory.

In a formal statement, climaxing a week of conferences here, John L. Lewis, international president of the miners' union, explained that the union was amending its policy for the purpose of coping with the depressed conditions in the bituminous coal industry.

VICTORY FOR ILLINOIS

The decision of the policy committee was a victory for Illinois miners, who demanded they be released from the 1924 Jacksonville wage scale which the union has considered its front line entrenchment.

The policy committee adopted the following resolutions:

1. That officers of respective districts comprising central competitive field and outlying bituminous districts be authorized to enter into wage negotiations with their respective operators upon basis mutually satisfactory.

2. That district representatives and officers of international union shall co-operate in execution of this policy.

3. That all district organizations be authorized to permit any coal company or any mine to employ all men it may require for maintenance, repairs, development, construction or production of coal; providing, however, that such company agrees with district to pay existing wage schedules and carry out existing agreement temporarily until a district agreement is negotiated.

4. That any agreement negotiated under this policy shall be submitted for ratification to district convention or referendum vote of respective district.

Negotiations between coal operators of the Pittsburgh district and officials of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, will be started just as soon as possible, declared Patrick Fagan, president of the district upon his return from Indianapolis this morning.

"We are anxious to end this strike and get our people back to work," he said, "and we realize that economic conditions in the coal industry make it necessary to modify our demands somewhat from the Jacksonville scale."

TO HOLD REFERENDUM

The first step in opening negotiations here is the formation of a district policy, Fagan revealed. The policy committee will meet here Monday morning with Philip Murray, international vice president, and whatever scale is agreed upon will be submitted to members in a referendum vote. They will have their choice either of continuing the strike or accepting the scale

Check Fines

When a motorist receives a notice by mail like the following from a burgess, magistrate, justice of the peace, or alderman, unaccompanied by an information, he may ignore the notice, for it is not legal, declares C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

"This notice in itself," states Roth, "is correct, if accompanied by a copy of the information filed against the motorist, but if none accompanies it, ignore it."

As one step in crusading against "fining squires" of Allegheny county, the Pittsburgh Motor Club will establish a check on their reports of fines collections in Harrisburg, Attorney Frank Zappala, counsel for the club, promised today.

Two White House "Conferences"

THEY DISCUSS BUSINESS

ON THE LAWN

Almost simultaneously, there were two "conferences" out-of-doors at the Summer White House, Brule, Wis. This is the one that attracted the attention of the nation. President Coolidge entertained Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, "on the lawn," and things were said.

SOCIAL HOUR

WOMENFOLKS

This was the other. While the menfolks talked shop (it is presumed), the women tarried beneath the trees. Here are Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Hoover and John—John is the President's son—who kept them company. Dogs on the estate provided much of the afternoon's amusement.

COUNTY FUND SHY

A discrepancy of more than $100,000 in the accounts of the Juvenile Court will be shown when the accountants making an audit of Allegheny county affairs make their report on that office, according to reports in the Court House today.

The report, scheduled to appear within a few days, is expected to charge negligence in the collection of accounts and carelessness in the keeping of records. It's appearance, it was predicted, may result in a shake-up in the office.

TWO AUDITS FINISHED

To date, three reports have been received from Ernst and Ernst, the auditors, by Controller Robert G. Woodside. These referred to the offices of the Clerk of Courts, the Recorder of Deeds and the Register of Wills, and were more or less routine affairs. The Juvenile Court report, it was said, is the first of several that will create a stir in the county.

PROBING TREASURY

Another report being awaited with interest is that on the office of the County Treasurer. For months the auditors have been making a detailed study of that office, going so far as to send thousands of statements to taxpayers asking them if they paid their taxes, when they were paid and how.

LOOT SAFE IN 5TH AVE.

Jimmying a safe in McCulloch's Drug Store, Fifth avenue and Grant street, in the heart of the downtown, early today, a robber obtained $175 and took $120 from a cash register. The robbery was discovered when a clerk opened the store this morning.

There were no marks on the doors or windows, indicating how the robber entered and the police were inclined to believe it was an "inside job." They are searching for an employe of the building, who, it was said, failed to report for work at the usual time today.

BAG SLOT MACHINES IN SIX RANKIN PLACES

County detectives raided five places in Rankin today and seized six slot machines. The alleged proprietors arrested were Santo Innarelli, 104 West Braddock avenue; James Evans, 315 Third street; Andrew Stafina, 241 Second street; Sam Sestack, 348 First street; John Davy, 416 Hawkins avenue.

WIFE FOILS ROBBERY

Aroused from her sleep by the turning of a doorknob, Mrs. Joseph Goldhammer, of 120 North Homewood avenue, was confronted by a Negro, with drawn revolver, at 3 o'clock this morning.

The intruder demanded to know where the owner of the building was, and informed that he was absent, asked if Mrs. Goldhammer was the owner's wife. When she replied in the negative, the Negro demanded money, but when Mrs. Goldhammer threatened to call the police, the Negro fled without making a search. Goldhammer was in an adjoining room.

Mrs. Goldhammer says she identified the Negro as the one who on two other occasions had visited the apartment house and inquired for the owner without mentioning Mr. Goldhammer's name. She described the intruder as being 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing 160 pounds. He wore dark clothing.

MURRYSVILLE MAN, STRUCK BY AUTO, DIES

Struck by an auto near his home in Murrysville, Westmoreland county, last night, Albert Hale, 60, died of a fractured skull in Columbia Hospital at 9 o'clock this morning.

Padlocks Snap on 7 Places

After final hearing today Federal Judge R. M. Gibson ordered decrees prepared which will padlock for one year seven places accused of violating the liquor laws. The list includes the widely-known black-and-tan cabaret, the Little Paris, at Wylie avenue and Fullerton street, operated by Peter Davidson and James Groze.

The other places are William Giel, Jr., and Charles Sander, 5921 Penn avenue; Frank Belch, 3325 Penn avenue; Albert Harenki, 3321 Penn avenue; Rudolph Diezek, 308 South Main street; Goldie Lerner and P. Lerner, 23 Elmore street; Della Dickson, Harry Dickson and B. Cohen, 1119 Kirkpatric street.

Mayor Bars Free Speech; Locks 'Phone

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O. July 19.—The Mayor's official telephone is now under lock and key. Visitors to his office have been in the habit of using the telephone for out of town calls, all of which were charged to the town. In fact many called on Mayor H. M. Davies for the purpose of using the telephone. He has had a cabinet constructed to house the telephone and it remains under lock except on official business.

33,000 TRY VOTE MACHINES

Indicative of the lively interest taken in the voting machines being used by The Sun-Telegraph for a presidential straw vote, is the fact that more than 800 persons cast ballots on them yesterday. At Kennywood Park, where the Charleroi Chamber of Commerce was holding its annual picnic, a large vote was returned, showing that even the frivolity of an amusement place could not deter the desire to see demonstrated the voting machine stationed there.

Invitations for the voting machines to be taken to outlying districts have been coming in, and throughout the city prospective voters for the November election are finding out through The Sun-Telegraph just how to operate the latest improved voting machine. A young lady is in attendance at each machine and the ease and simplicity with which the machines operate has attracted a great number of people.

More than 33,000 vote. have been registered on the six machines scattered about the city and environs and this large number of straw votes represent the expression of many who became interested in the voting machine policy.

As for Hoover and Smith, the vote yesterday showed 311 for the Republican and 525 for the Democratic side. This brings the grand totals in Pittsburgh of 17,737 for Hoover and 19,461 for his opponent.

BUCS FACE ROBINS, SEEK 10TH

Uncle Robbie and his ambitious Dodgers reached Pittsburgh today after a one-day experience in Cincinnati that was anything but enjoyable. The Robins had a stop-over privilege on the way over here from St. Louis, same being a result of the arrangement of this year's schedule. The Reds were mean enough to hang two defeats on the Dodgers, who had been meeting with considerable success up to their arrival in Rhineland.

The new visitors will clash with the Pirates this afternoon in the first contest of a four-game set

Seek "Brain" of Obregon Death Plot

CELL DOOR OPENS FOR MEANS

ATLANTA, Ga., July 19.—Gaston B. Means, former Department of Justice agent and prominent figure in the Senate investigation of former Attorney General Daugherty, was released from the Federal Penitentiary here today.

He completed two two-year sentences, which ran consecutively, by appearing before a United States commissioner and taking a pauper's oath of inability to pay two fines of $10,000 also imposed upon him. In lieu of payment of this fine he had served an extra 30 days' imprisonment.

Mean entered the penitentiary on May 22, 1925 after having been convicted in New York of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and attempted bribery in connection with the operations of the Craeger Glass Casket Company. Time allowed for good conduct gave him a reduction in the aggregate four-year term.

BUSINESS MEN'S PICNIC AUG. 1

The annual outing of the Wilkinsburg Business Men's Association will be held August 1, in Kennywood Park, as originally scheduled, Barton Spear, secretary of the organization announced yesterday. Considerable confusion has arisen in the borough following the announcement yesterday that another group of business men had set a date for their annual outing. This second outing will not alter the plans for the Business Men's Association picnic.

RELIGION HELD BACK OF KILLING

MEXICO CITY, July 19.—(AP.)—Search was intensified today for those whom President Calles termed the "intellectual directors" of the assassination of Gen. Alvaro Obregon.

General Obregon's body was en route to his native state of Sonora, some 1,000 miles distant on the presidential train which he would have used after his inauguration in December. The body will arrive at its last resting place tomorrow.

As if left Mexico City thousands of Obregon followers raised their right hands and took a solemn oath to sustain his principles and see that punishment was visited upon those responsible for his death. This was done at the instance of a member of Congress who, as the oath was given, turned to President Calles standing nearby and said:

"We demand of you justice by the punishment of those guilty of murdering Obregon."

Police identified the slayer as Jose De Leon Toran, 23, an art student and a native of Lagos, in the state of Jalisco.

President Calles in a signed statement, announced that the assassin had confessed that his crime was motivated by religious fervor. He said also the authorities had gained much information "complicating directly clerical action." The government was determined, he stated, to punish not only the material author of the crime, but also to furnish "as examples" those found to be "intellectual directors of the dead."

General Antonio Rios Zertuche, installed as chief of police after the tragedy, announced that the prisoner "had commenced to talk." Emilio Casado, proprietor of the restaurant at San Angel where Obregon was killed, and 12 employes of that plce, were arrested and held for investigation. El Universal Grafico said the mother and wife of the assassin also were under arrest.

General Limon, chief of the presidential staff, announced that the situation throughout the republic conitnued tranquil despite the intense feeling which the slaying had engendered. The army was under orders to maintain the peace and censorship still was in force. Excitement in the capital, which caused numerous enemies of Obregon to flee in fear of their lives, quieted considerably.

The permanent commission of Congress was summoned to meet today to consider the political situation which has resulted from the assassination. Whether Calles would continue in office after his term expires in December or whether another would be elected to replace Obregon, was still a matter of conjecture.

to collect the fees," Zappala charged, "and the Motor Club intends to war against this practice. We'll inspect to the smallest detail their reports to the commonwealth and if and when the evidence warrants, we'll prosecute the guilty ones."

Zappala estimated hundreds of motorists are being fined unjustly annually in this county. He advised the drivers, when arrested, to waive hearing before the local justice for trial in the county courts.

INSURANCE UP IN UNION TWP.

The fire insurance rates in what was formerly Union township, but now a part of the city, have been increased from $1.45 to $2.52 per $100, Council was informed yesterday by C. M. Neeld. Lack of proper water supply and hydrants is given as the reason. The City Solicitor and the Bureau of Water were ordered to investigate.

FAGAN IS BACK FROM PARLEY

agreed upon by the committee, Fagan said.

The policy committee is composed of six members of the district executive board, six members of the scale committee, which is made up of working miners; the international board member, John O'Leary; Mr. Fagan, William Hargest, secretary-treasurer of District No. 5, and W. J. Patton, vice president. Mr. Murray will act in an advisory capacity at this meeting.

Attending the international policy committee sessions in Indianapolis were Fagan, Hargest, Patton, O'Leary, William Hynds, district board member; James Kerr and John McWee, district scale committeeman, and Murray. All returned today except Murray and O'Leary, who will remain in Indianapolis until Saturday or Sunday to attend the international board sessions.

That the union is extremely anxious to begin negotiations with the operators of this district was indicated by Fagan. "We are ready to go ahead and meet the operators who are desirous of negotiating with us," he said, "just as soon as our policy is formed."

He was silent on C. E. Lesher's denunciation of union policies in the past and his declaration today that the Pittsburgh Coal Company would not enter into any negotiations with the United Mine Workers or any other miners' organization. In this connection, Fagan said only that union officials would make every effort to reach an agreement with coal company officials in this district.

Lesher is executive vice president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and declared that his company would follow the policies outlined by W. G. Warden, chairman of the board, before the United States Senatorial Investigation Committee at Washington.

"Insofar as the Pittsburgh Coal Company is concerned," he said, "there has been no strike and we have not entered into any negotiation with the United Mine Workers for three years, at which time we abandoned the Jacksonville agreement and dealt with the men themselves."

Horace F. Baker, president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, another big operator in this district, declined to make any statement as to what policy would be followed by his company.

Tipstaff Killed by Fall

Charles Gilchrist, 77, county Court tipstaff, died at 3 o'clock this morning from shock, resulting from a fall from a second story window at his home, 157 Dickson avenue, Ben Avon, early yesterday.

Ill for some time, Gilchrist is thought to have been wandering around his home and to have mistaken a window for a door. Members of the family were aroused by his moans and his son, Charles E. Gilchrist, Jr., found him on the lawn.

He had been a tipstaff in the county court 18 years, was a member of the Bethel M. P. Church, St. John's Lodge, F. & A. M., and the Masonic Veterans' Association.

"Robinson" and two other names appeared on a slip of paper found in the pocket of President-elect Obregon's assassin. Does it mean Thomas A. Robinson, American mining engineer, husband of President Calles' daughter, is marked for death?

LAST

Here is the most recent photograph taken of President-elect Alvaro Obregon in the midst of his family. The members are Humbor, Alvaro, Jr., Sra, Obregon, Alvita, Gen. Obregon, Mayo and Refugio. The assassination took place at a political banquet at San Angel, 12 miles from Mexico City. A young Mexican did the killing.

HANDICAPPED

This is an excellent portrait of the man who was to have taken Mexico's highest office in December. He was handicapped by the loss of one arm, but despite that has stood out in Mexico's political, social and military activities. His killing may affect politics, which President Calles is attempting to steady.

PRESIDENTS BOTH

Here are Gen. Obregon and President Calles, who succeeded Obregon after his first term as Mexico's president. A non-succession law barred Obregon from a second consecutive term. In the recent election, July 1, he was unopposed, two other candidates having been executed.

BROADWAY

Broadway, street of welcomes and farewells, has said goodby to another. The parting was a eulogy for Capt. Emilio Carranza, who flies once again—by train to his homeland. Here is the caisson on which his body, draped in the flag of the United States, was carried in funereal cortege to the waiting train. The shrouded mount, boots turned in the stirrup, is a symbol rich by tradition.

PITTSBURGH

Early today the flyer bearing Carranza's body back to assassin-stirred Mexico passed through Pittsburgh and soldiers on duty here stood a silent watch in Pennsylvania Station. The official nation is honoring as highly as possible the memory of this intrepid Mexican youth, carried to death by his enthusiasm to build good will between his flag and this. Weather Conditions.

The thunderstorm condition that appeared over the Central Plains and the Rocky Mountain states yesterday morning spread over all the Plains states and eastward over the lake region to Western Pennsylvania. The showers were generally light to moderate. Only a few localities reported more than an inch of rain. The low pressure area that produced the shower condition increased somewhat in intensity, and it covers vastly more country than yesterday.

High pressure continues over the Southeast and the temperature is above normal from the Plains states eastward.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly in the Pittsburgh district. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.5 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.4; Dam No. 6, 7.6 feet. The dams are up.

RUSSIA TO PLAY LONE HAND IN ICE RESCUE

MOSCOW, July 19.—(AP.)—Russia intends to strengthen her forces searching for Roald Amundsen and his five missing companions and for the six men carried away in the balloon part of the Italia after its crash north of Spitzbergen.

Vice Commissary for War Kameneff, asked concerning the plans for the rescue work, said:

"Our expedition is facing a most difficult problem. For the solution of it we must prop up our forces and means, particularly because we can no longer count on the co-operation of other governments, and we shall evidently have to work alone.

"The solution of this problem is a matter of paramount importance to our public. The complications and difficulties of the task must not discourage us, since the members of our expedition have proved that they are ready and able to overcome the gravest obstacles."

The ice breaker Maligin, searching for Amundsen to the east of North East Land, reached the edge of the ice pack north of Spitzbergen. It turned and was proceeding along the southeast coast of Spitzbergen Archipelago. The vessel reported that frequently it had been jammed in the ice fields and experienced two violent storms which caused some damage to the ship.

The other Russian ice breaker, the Krassin, will return to the waters north of North Eastland after taking on coal at Kings Bay and commence an intensive search. Russian planes will use the ship as a base for flights over the ice fields looking for the missing men.

SWEDES DROP QUEST

STOCKHOLM, July 19.—(AP.)—The Swedish Spitzbergen relief expedition has been sent orders to return to Stockholm.

There are two Swedish ships now in the North—the Quest, which was used as a base for aviation scouts, and the Tanja, which is riding at anchor with three Swedish aviators, who will proceed home.

Members of the Swedish rescue party include Capt. Tornders, Lieut. Einer Lundborg and Lieut. Shyberg. Lieut. Lundborg made a brilliant landing on the ice off North East Land on June 24 and rescued Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the Italia expedition. Lieut. Lundborg made a second trip to the place, but damaged his plane in landing and was marooned himself for 13 days. Finally he was taken off by his lieutenant, Shyberg, who landed on the ice.

Tube Crash Injures Woman

A woman was injured and three automobiles were damaged in an accident in the Liberty Tubes, last night.

Mrs. Elizabeth Horning, 42, of 920 Western avenue, suffered internal injuries when the automobile of David Lloyd, 50, of 10 Haberman avenue, in which she was riding was upset in the tunnel when struck by a machine driven by Steve Dobranski, 23, of 508 Third avenue, Homestead, according to police.

Lloyd's car, badly damaged, was knocked against the automobile of John Pope, of 235 East Meers street. Lloyd and Dobranski were arrested.

RIVER PACKETS ARRANGE RACE

CINCINNATI, O., July 19.—(AP.)—The boast of Capt. Chris Greene that his river packet which bears his name can beat the Betsy Ann, "anytime she wants to race," was called yesterday.

As evidence of good faith and confidence in her superiority, the Betsy Ann will hand over to Capt. Chris Greene her pair of golf leaf elkhorns won in a race on the Mississippi if his boat wins.

The time was set for next Tuesday night and the distance from the Cincinnati wharf, upstream to New Richmond, O., by Frederick Way, Jr., of Pittsburgh, president of the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati Packet Line.

The speed of the two boats came into dispute last week, when a New Richmond, O., correspondent reported that the Betsy Ann had defeated the Chris Greene in a 20-mile race from New Richmond to Chilo.

Upon his return to Cincinnati, Capt. Greene denied that the Betsy Ann had won. He said his boat had won two races from her in a week and could beat her any time she wanted to race.

The challenge, which has been expected for several days, is the talk of the Cincinnati river front, and river men are divided in opinions.

One of them in an open letter took issue with the New Richmond correspondent's description of the Betsy Ann as having a "water-soaked, wooden hull."

"The Betsy Ann," this former engineer of the boat wrote, "is an up-to-date, steel-hulled packet, driven by compound condensing machinery and equipped with electricity."

BOY SWIMMER DROWNS IN MIDST OF BATHERS

SISTERSVILLE, W. Va., July 19.—(AP.)—Eugene Inbody, 12, of Sistersville, was drowned at Colliers Beach, a bathing resort, while bathing yesterday. A large crowd was not aware the boy had drowned until several minutes after he disappeared. He made no outcry.

HOOVER WILL PRESENT FARM AID PLAN

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

ABOARD HOOVER SPECIAL, EN ROUTE TO PALO ALTO, Cal., July 19.—Herbert Hoover will present a specific farm relief program to American agriculture in his speech accepting the Republican presidential nomination at Palo Alto, Cal., August 11, it was learned today on good authority.

Hoover will pledge himself to devote his best administrative efforts toward solving the problem, show that he recognizes agriculture as the basic industry of the country and propose immediate relief through the development of inland waterways, the adjustment of freight rates on farm products and the orderly marketing of surpluses with government aid, without invoking the equalization fee.

This much was revealed as the Hoover special rolled down out of the Rockies and left the green fields of the agricultural belt far behind. All through the wheat and corn belts, he demonstrated to visitors aboard his train an intimate knowledge of agricultural conditions and a disposition to solve the farm problem.

FARM COMPANY ABOARD

Hoover had farm company clear across the western prairies. First, Gov. John H. Hammill, of Iowa, came aboard, talked farm problems to him and called him the next President of the United States. Then Gov. Adam McMullen, the Nebraska insurgent, joined the nominee. McMullen declared Hoover showed a "sympathetic attitude toward solving the farm problem" and predicted Nebraska would go safely Republican, along with the rest of the farm belt states.

SPEED ELWYN ANNEX VOTE

The petition for the annexation of the Third district of Baldwin Township, known as Elwyn, to Pittsburgh was withdrawn from Council yesterday by a committee of those signing it. They notified Council that they had been informed that those opposing annexation planned to carry the fight against it to the Supreme Court if necessary.

The withdrawal, it was said, was done to expedite the annexation movement, the sponsors of which plan to have the question voted upon at the general election. If approved, the annexation will come January 1, 1929.

Pittsburgh As Others See Us

"Pittsburgh may today be regarded as one of the cultural centers of the world."
—JAMES G. HARBORD

GEN. J. G. HARBORD

GEN. JAMES G. HARBORD, president Radio Corporation of America, born in Bloomington, Ill., March 21, 1866. Graduated from Kansas State Agricultural College. Entered U. S. Army service as private in 1889 and rose to chief of staff, A. E. F., commanding the Second Division in the Soissons offensive. He was commanding general of the services of supply and was deputy chief of staff, U. S. A., until retired in 1922 to become president of the Radio Corporation of America. Lives in New York City.

That there can be art in industry, and industry in art, is proved by the City of Pittsburgh. . . . Out of this highly industrial and practical atmosphere, a genuine and lasting culture has nurtured and grown into world-wide prominence. Pittsburgh may today be regarded as one of the cultural centers of the world. In learning it ranks among the leaders. . . . Pittsburgh is the birthplace of many noteworthy contributions, particularly in the way of industrial research conducted at the Mellon Institute and in the laboratories of the Westinghouse Company. In the fine arts, Pittsburgh is an acknowledged center attracting lovers of music and drawing and painting and sculpture from all parts of the world.

But overshadowing even all these things, I believe, is the fact that Pittsburgh is the cradle of radio broadcasting. It was the pioneer work of Station KDKA that realized the unbounded potentialities of this wonderful means for disseminating music and enlightenment. . . . On this score alone, and apart from its splendid achievements in the arts and sciences, Pittsburgh must take its place among the leading centers of culture and art, just as it has already gained world wide cognizance as an industrial center that converts raw iron and coal into the very sinews of modern civilization.

J. G. Harbord

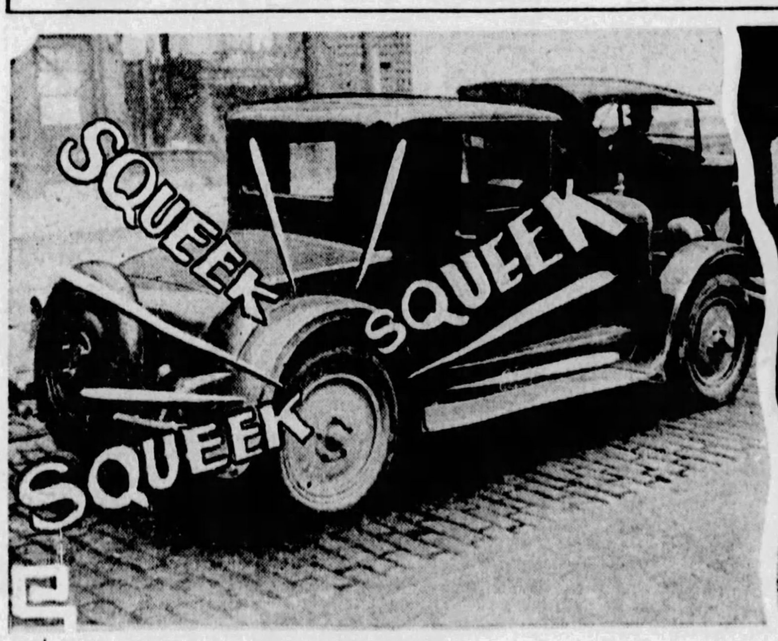
How Are Your Brakes? -:- COUNCIL WOULD MUFFLE HUCKSTERS! -:- Sotto Voce Horn Mode

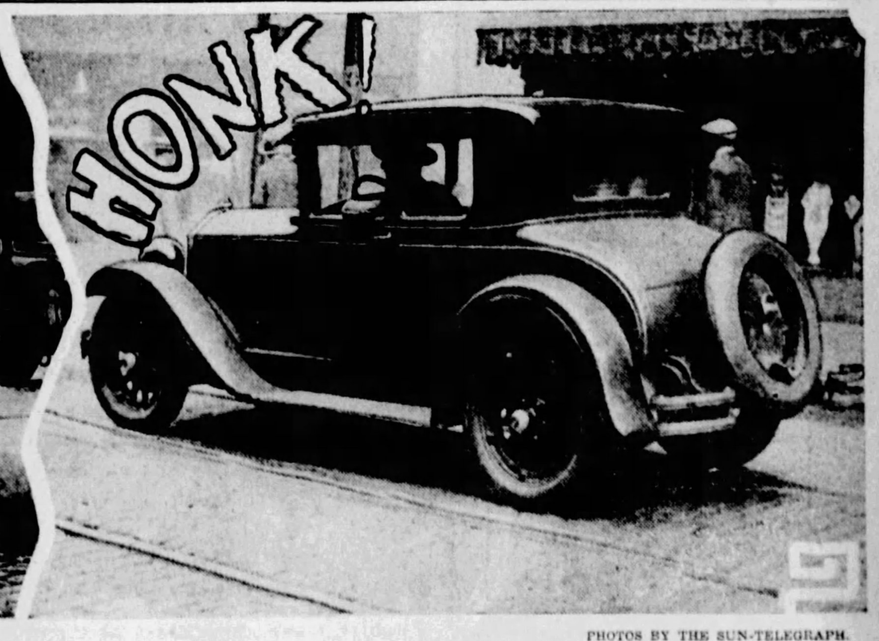


BRAKES!

Among the things an ordinance now in City Council would eliminate as "unnecessary noises" is the "squeaky brake" of the indifferent automobilist. Here, a motorist in downtown traffic obligingly demonstrates for you.

HUCKSTERS!

The familiar, often unmelodious cry of the huckster is also taboo. Just how he may inform a hungry public of his wares the ordinance does not suggest. Will necessity mother invention?



PHOTOS BY THE SUN-TELEGRAPH.

HORNS!

Horns, too, come in for their share of criticism. Needless "honking" in which some autoists indulge must also go, although the motorist may sound his horn as a warning. One of the Pittsburgh Smiths demonstrates "honking" above.

WEIL FETED ON 70TH BIRTHDAY

High tribute was paid to A. Leo Weil at a testimonial dinner held at the Westmoreland Country Club last night on the occasion of the attorney's seventieth birthday. More than 200 persons, including leaders of Pittsburgh Jewry, attended and joined in the general felicitations.

Lawyers with whom he was associated; judges before whom he had pleaded cases; philanthropists who knew of his charity, and clergymen who attested to his character—all spoke glowingly of his career.

Marcus Aaron, president of the Board of Public Education, was toastmaster and cited numerous achievements of Mr. Weil in public service. He recounted Mr. Weil's presidency of the Voters' League, his direction of the investigations which led to reforms of vital import to the city.

The significance of the testimonial dinner was emphasized by George R. Wallace, former president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, who declared the city owed Mr. Weil "a debt of gratitude for his splendid service, one of great value and perseverence.

Ludwig Vogelstein, of New York, philanthropist and active in the affairs of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, gave an insight into Mr. Weil's activities in behalf of the Jewish religion throughout America. A humerous sidelight on the man's character was presented by Levi Cook, Washington (D. C.) lawyer, who described the duck-hunting proclivities of Mr. Weil.

Judge W. H. S. Thomson, of the United States District Court, spoke enthusiastically of the honored guest.

"Few stand higher in the profession of law than Mr. Weil," Judge Thomson said. "He has attained his 70 years without a stain on his record. He is a humanitarian and a free man, with no one having a mortgage on his manhood and no fetters on his mind."

Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson attested to Mr. Weil's "Virtues of indomitable will, loyalty and courage."

In answer to the many praiseworthy remarks, Mr. Weil insisted that he had had more satisfaction through his labors in public service than all other things in life.

"I would not strike a single link from the chain of memories," he said. "I have been fortunate in helpmate, children and friends and can truthfully say my life has been satisfactory."

Mr. Weil was born in Keysville, Va., and his early education was in private schools in Virginia and public schols in Titusville, Pa. He graduated from the University of Virginia and was admitted to the Virginia bar at 21. He began his legal career in Bradford, Pa., and moved to Pittsburgh when he was 30 years old. His practice specialized with corporations in the iron and steel business, in coal, oil and gas industries and large commercial concerns. His civic work earned him a lasting reputation.

DEATH ROLL

William S. Markley.

William S. Markley, affiliated with Carnegie Steel Company for 37 years, died in his home at 119 West Hutchinson avenue, Edgewood, yesterday. He was a member of Edgewood Presbyterian Church, Temple Lodge 678, F. & A. M.; Tancred Commandery, Knights Templar; Pennsylvania Consistory and Syria Temple, and Edgewood Country Club. Mr. Markley leaves his wife, Mrs. Caroline M. Markley; a son, William M. Markley; a sister, Ella Markley, and a brother, Nelson S. Markley.

Serve a Lamb Roast Sunday!

Legs lb. 38c Fores lb. 25c Loins lb. 38c

Good beef is scarce and out of sight in price. We can't bring the beef price down, but we can feature Lamb at prices everyone will welcome. Tender young lamb you'll enjoy—the sweetest, tenderest meat you can buy. Note the low prices.

Small Fresh Hams, lb. 27c
Whole or half—lean, tender chicken-like meat.

"Shellwhite" Fresh Eggs, doz. 47c
Selected as a worthy running mate for Perfect Butter. Large clean white table eggs, fresh from the nest!

Fresh Huckleberry Pie each 38c
Crisp crust so tender it yields easily to a fork, filled to the brim with freshly picked huckleberries. Nine inches in diameter, over an inch thick—a typical McCann home-made pie.

Fricassee of Chicken, an Old Favorite!
Freshly Dressed Chickens, lb. 42c
Plump hens that make delicious broth or fricassee. In cooking, they yield a rich gravy that "touches the spot" when served with waffles or biscuits.

A Most Relished Delicacy!
McCann's Chicken Salad, pt. 79c
Freshly made in our kitchens from tender chickens selected from our poultry counter. Bits of light and dark meat, celery, and mushrooms, combined with salad dressing. A favorite for party lunches. No chicken substitutes are used in the making.

MILLIONAIRES IN CRASH

PLANE FLYING ON TUNNEY VISIT CRACKS UP

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 19.—Four New York millionaires were little the worse today for having gone through an airplane crash, which might easily have resulted in serious injury or death.

The Fairchild cabin monoplane, carrying Bernard Gimbel, Charles V. Bobb, James I. Bush and Samuel E. Pryor, Pittsburgher, and piloted by William Winston, of the Curtiss Company, hit the tops of a group of trees near here late yesterday and crashed to the ground.

All of the occupants were unhurt except Bobb and Winston. The former suffered a deep gash in his forehead and minor cuts about the face, while Winston was cut under both eyes.

The injured men were taken to the home of a physician and remained in Speculator last night, while the others returned to New York.

The party left Curtiss Field shortly after noon to visit Gene Tunney at his training camp.

The pilot brought the plane down successfully in a small patch of ground about 500 feet long near Speculator.

The sportsmen then went on the the heavyweight champion's camp, about a mile away, and watched him work out.

Some doubt was expressed as to whether the plane would be able to take off in so small a space, but all agreed to chance it. With motors roaring it swept down the short take-off and soared into the air. For a breathless moment it seemed that it would get away without mishap. Then the undercarriage caught in the tree-tops and the plane crashed to the ground.

Ben Lyon Develops Flying Mania After Many Days Spent In Air Making "Hell's Angels"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 19.

BARRING a few cuts and scratches which temporarily mar his manly beauty, Ben Lyon is none the worse for his recent airplane "crack-up." Ben has developed into something of an air-nut since his many hours of flying in "Hell's Angels." He has suffered several minor casualties, and his friends have been apprehensive that he would go up—or rather, come down—once too often. This almost happened when engine trouble forced him to land in the Los Angeles river bed, narrowly escaping a nose dive which must surely have been fatal. Ben has many more air hours to his credit than are necessary to produce a pilot's license, but all the same his pals are hoping he doesn't get one. Despite the name of the picture, Ben hasn't yet got "wings like an angel," and sometimes flying machines fail to fly.

"Burlesque" is one all-talking picture, which will not be made in the East. Paramount's first all-sound production will be filmed and synchronized right out here. And Director Victor Fleming is the boy in charge of the megaphone. Nancy Carroll is the girl. And that is as far as they have got in selecting a cast.

Another member of the Schildkraut family has been signed for "Show Boat." She is Elsie Bartlett, wife of Joseph, who plays the role of "Ravenal." This will be her first film. But long stage experience, and fine "screen ability" has enabled her to successfully pass both screen and scream tests. Another addition to the cast is Neely Edwards, husband of yesterday's favorite, Marguerite Snow, who was once Mrs. James Cruze.

Louise Dresser, never to be forgotten after her acting in "The Goose Woman" and numerous other pictures, is leaving the screen for a while to return to the stage, always her first love. Miss Dresser has two offers for character roles in Broadway productions, and has determined to accept one of them for another whirl at the "legit" drama this fall.

NEW PROGRAMS LISTED

The Nixon Players will present in the Nixon next week "Nothing But the Truth," a comedy in three acts, by James Montgomery, from the novel by Frederick S. Isham. The seat sale opens today.

"In Love With Love" is to be presented in the Pitt next week by the George Sharp Players. Seats are on sale today.

Frank Elliott, who has one of the most important roles in "The Captive," now playing in the Gayety, for three years was leading man in the Drury Lane Theater, London.

Richard Barthelmess in "The Wheel of Chance" will be the photoplay attraction in the Stanley next week. Lina Basquette is the leading woman. The stage revue is titled "The Garden Party."

The new stage show scheduled for the Penn next week is titled "Chinese Nights," and features the Honorable Mr. Wu, Chinese singer, dancer and impersonator. Eleanor Boardman will be seen on the screen in "Diamond Handcuffs."

"Half a Bride," in which Esther Ralston is starred, will be shown in the Grand next week.

In the Sheridan Square the last three days of the week the bill includes Kranz and Kaufman in comedy and songs. "My Friend From India," with Elinor Fair and Franklin Pangborn, is the screen feature.

In "Personality Plus," Pressler and Klaiss top the vaudeville in the Harris the last three days. They have a comedy and music act. "My Friend From India," taken from the stage farce of the same name by De Souchet, with Elinor Fair and Franklin Pangborn, is on the screen.

SOME ACTOR FOLK :-: IN ATTRACTIONS :-: IN PLAY HOUSES

Harry Bannister, leading man of Nixon Players, who present "Nothing But the Truth" in Nixon next week.

Richard Barthelmess will be the Stanley screen star next week, appearing in "Wheels of Chance."

Marcia Byron, appearing in "The Captive," playing second and final week of Gayety engagement.

Eleanor Boardman comes to the Penn screen next week as the feminine star in "Diamond Handcuffs."

Gus Forbes, member of the George Sharp Players, whose next bill is "In Love With Love," Pitt.

WEEMS' ORCHESTRA COMING TO SANDERS

Ted Weems will bring his dance orchestra to Sanders Monday night for a two-week engagement. The current musical attraction in this dance resort is Dave Harman's orchestra. This is the second engagement this organization has played in Sanders this season.

LUCKY STRIKE "IT'S TOASTED" CIGARETTES

What no other cigarette can offer, you actually get in Lucky Strike. Toasting does it—remember that! Those elements which cause throat irritation are driven out by toasting. At the same time this extra process thoroughly matures the tobacco.

Summer Felt Hats

Little, close-fitting hats, for the most part, some of them with slight brims to shade the eyes . . . soft, lustrous felt in the more popular shades:

White Middy Blue
Yellow Prairie Green
Beige Gray

Artistic designing and careful finishing distinguish these hats. And at the price, it should be possible to have one to go with each ensemble of the vacation wardrobe!

New Frocks of Black Satin

Arriving in Time to Complete Many Smart Late-Vacation Wardrobes

$25.00

These charming new frocks are the sort of which everybody likes to have at least one at all times. Because, while they're decidedly dressy, they retain a certain restrained trimness of line and simplicity of detail that suits them for street wear and even for travel.

There are five different styles, and every one of them has something about it to distinguish it from dresses usually seen at this price. Skirts of intriguing cut . . . some with tiers, some with slight side drapery . . . relieving touches of the crepe side of the fabric, interestingly applied . . . flattering necklines, some with lingerie touches at throat and wrist . . . these and similar details usually associated with fine dresses identify these dresses as unusual values. Sizes 34 to 44.

Verna Tells Bob She Had Followed Him Because She Loved Him

"YES," she whispered. "I—I think I have cared for, or, so much longer than I ever knew, and—and that——" She broke off with a sudden catch in her breath. "But not now—there is no time now—and these knots are so terribly hard. And I am taking so much time—and Mindar Singh said that I must get you free, and that we must get into the boat as quickly as we could."

She was working desperately, devoting her attention first to the lashings around his waist—and half-sobbing still.

"I'll wait, then!" Bob Kingsley forced a lightness and a gayety into his voice. "How can you know how much I care until my arms are free! It's all right, Verna! There's time enough. The crew, to the last man, so far as I can make out, are all below—sleeping off the day's carousal."

"No," she said, "there are a few still on the deck."

"But they are hors de combat, too," he reassured her. "Where's Mindar Singh?"

"I don't know," she answered. "He—he struck down that man at the wheel and—and——"

"Yes, I saw that," Bob Kingsley interrupted hastily. "But where is he now?"

"I don't know," she repeated. "He came to me and told me I was to set you free, and that we were to get at once into the boat. He said he would come soon; and then he went away across the deck. I—I thought that they had killed him today."

"Yes!" said Bob Kingsley under his breath. His eyes were searching the deck; he was listening intently. He could see nothing, hear nothing.

"You are free now!" she said suddenly.

He reached out to her and caught her up into his arms.

"Why didn't you untie my hands first?" he asked in teasing reproach—and his lips found hers before she could answer. "Were you afraid of—this?"

"No"—her words were barely audible—"but I was afraid that—that something might happen—that you would still be tied here to the rail with no chance of getting to the boat, and—and no time to—"

"You're right!" he said soberly. "The boat first!"

He carried her the few steps forward to the bow that she might be that much the longer in his arms, and here he set her down upon her feet. A moment later he had located the boat just below him on the port side.

He swung himself over the bow, and braced himself on the bowsprit's lower stay. The rest was not difficult, for the schooner's bow was low, and Verna lowering herself into his arms, he swung her from there down into the boat. An instant later, he, too, was in the boat—but there was still the line that made the boat fast to the schooner. It was at the boat's stern, he remembered. He found it—and found it securely knotted—but after a few minutes' work he loosened it so that it might be cast off at a moment's notice. Then he moved forward to the thwart where Mindar Singh had sat that afternoon. The oars were still in the rowlocks. He smiled grimly then. It was a lucky thing the boat was fitted with rowlocks—with thole-pins there would likely have been no oars left! But Chen-shu, of course, had known that! What did it matter? As soon as Mindar Singh came they would start for the shore. It was a long way, but they ought to be able to make it in three or four hours—before daylight anyway. And even if a breeze sprang up and Chen-shu and his crew got their senses back sufficiently to navigate the schooner, there'd be no chance of finding the boat in the darkness.

"All's ready, Verna!" he said cheerily in a guarded voice—and stretching out his hand to her where she had seated herself on the thwart just forward of him, he drew her back to his side.

She made no answer—except to lift her hands impulsively and clasp his face between them.

His arms went around her. It was very dark. He could scarcely see her features; but he could feel the wetness of her cheek against his own, and sense the quiver of her lips as they met his. He drew her head down on his shoulder.

"I want to know so many things," he pleaded. "I want to know first of all why you were so anxious to get to Singapore when it wasn't any longer to lay me by the heels, and—"

She stopped him with her fingers on his lips.

"But it was because of you," she whispered. "I think I knew before I left the Alita at Kalawa that—that I cared. I think I knew then, in half admitting it was a possibility, that I had treated you more shamefully than any man had ever—"

"Don't!" he protested tenderly. "That's not what I want to know, Verna!"

"Let me finish," she urged. "I think I knew those things then; I was sure of them when I had heard the story of the Chinese junk and your uncle's death, as you said you wanted me to hear it, from all those different people at Kalawa. And—and I was ashamed; and—and terribly afraid on your account. You had gone to Singapore, first of all for me—also that Chen-shu should know I no longer had the idol, you said. And—and I couldn't let you fight for me any more alone. I was sure that I could help. My brother's official connections made that certain. I knew all the English officers in the service intimately. I knew they would do much for me, and anything for my brother's sake. And first of all I meant to see that you were not without protection, even though you might not know it. But I never got so far as that. I had hardly landed when that note I thought you had written was brought to me, and after that—" Her voice choked suddenly. "Oh, I do not want to speak of that!"

"Stanch love!" he said brokenly. "Do you remember I said that night on the beach at Aoru that yours would be the most wonderful?"

"I remember." Her voice was very low. "That was—oh, so long ago!"

There was a sudden sound above their heads—like the scraping of feet that had lost their hold. Bob Kingsley looked up—and, with a low, startled exclamation, made his way hurriedly to the stern. Mindar Singh was swaying weakly on the bowsprit's stay. He caught the man in his arms, and lifted him into the boat.

"Row, Sahib," Mindar Singh gasped, "for I who am the servant have not the strength."

"Strength, Mindar Singh!" Bob exclaimed, as he settled the man's now almost helpless form in the bottom of the boat, and dropped the other's back against the stern thwart. "Of course, you haven't! We thought you were dead this afternoon, and no one would have believed at best that you could ever have even stood upon your feet again." He cast off the line, and, returning to his seat, began to pull noiselessly away from the schooner.

There was no sound from the vessel, nothing to indicate that anyone aboard had become aware of their escape; neither was there any light aboard—and presently the schooner was lost in the darkness. But there were a few stars, and Bob Kingsley, setting his course thereby, settled down for a long pull to the shore. Verna had returned to the seat forward of his and nearer the bow—Mindar Singh, in the bottom of the boat, half sitting, half reclining, fared him from the stern a few feet away.

"You spoke of strength, Mindar Singh," Bob Kingsley said abruptly. "I still do not understand, for it is certain that Chen-shu thought he had left you out there in the boat to die."

"Yes, Sahib," Mindar Singh answered, "and I, too, thought that I was about to die; but, Sahib, when my senses returned to me, I lay still in the boat and made no movement, and yet again after the darkness came, and for the length of time that the Sahib knows, I lay there and gathered strength. And so it was, Sahib, that there came back to me such strength as I have had. But it is nearly at an end now, Sahib, and surely I shall die; yet am I content if I may live for but a little longer that my eyes may rest upon that which I desire to see."

"Good Lord!" ejaculated Bob Kingsley heavily. "You mean the treasure? Those are almost Chen-shu's exact words. You can't be as keen on it as all that, Mindar Singh!"

"That of which I speak, Sahib," Mindar Singh replied in a tone so low that Bob Kingsley could scarcely catch the words, "is of greater worth than treasure."

Bob Kingsley pulled his brows together in a puzzled way.

"I don't know what you mean," he said. "What is it? And there are some other things I want to ask you too."

"Ask me not, Sahib," Mindar Singh replied in a faint voice; "but let me rest, for I grow very weak."

Bob Kingsley's lips came tightly together.

"We owe you our lives, Mindar Singh," he said huskily. "I wish to God there was something we could do for you!"

"There is nothing, Sahib," Mindar Singh made answer.

Bob Kingsley bent to the oars, pulling, with long vigorous strokes now. That was the only way he could help Mindar Singh—to reach the land, and Capt. Scarface, and the Iola—if Mindar Singh lived that long! There was no need for silence any more, it did not matter if the oars splashed occasionally; they were already too far away from the schooner to be heard even if those on board were on the alert.

Five, ten, perhaps fifteen minutes passed—Bob Kingsley did not know how many—and then suddenly he stopped rowing, and sat motionless, staring astern. There was a light there.

Personal Declarations of Independence Due Today—Fay King

JUST A DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE, TUBBY, I'M TIRED OF PETTING PARTIES!
WOT'S THE BIG IDEA?
TAD-LING

By FAY KING

HOW much better off some persons would be if they would make a personal declaration of independence.

Independence from worthless pals who will lead them into mischief and maybe worse.

Independence to stick by what they know to be right; to cut out doing things they don't really want to do, but do them just to show how independent they are.

Plenty of these persons are ready to make a declaration of independence when it comes to a move in the wrong direction.

Cut out worthless friends, time-wasting frivolities and bad habits.

It takes real independence to make one step back in the right direction, and quit marching merrily along to the dogs with a bunch of unworthy wasters.

Kitten Sees the Woman Who Was at the Inn, Emily Recognizes Her

CHAPTER XLVIII.

THINGS did not change for a time. Days went by with Kitten remaining in her room for the most part, coming down for meals or when Marty called and asked to see her. Emily was not present at these conferences.

Agnes went about rather serenely, buoyed by the firm belief that Marty had the power and the will to lead them out of all their difficulties. She made a great fuss over him, insisting upon giving him a bite of freshly baked cake or a tart, as the case might be.

He accepted these favors somewhat absently and Emily remembered the first time he had come to the table in the dining room, red and awkward and choking on her mother's strong tea. He had gone a long way since then; his manner now was easy and assured and he had the appearance of a gentleman.

But she doubted that the inner Nolan had changed.

He was different in another way; nearly a year now since he had said he was going to marry her some day. Sometimes she wondered if he had given up that idea. Agnes, she knew, saw in his professional service only the devotion of one almost a member of the family.

Emily asked herself if this was in his mind. If, offended by her indifference, he had waited for a chance to establish himself with her and was using the present opportunity for that purpose.

If he came to her after he had cleared Kitten and asked her to marry him, what would she say?

What could she say?

She put that question from her. It couldn't be answered now.

Once Kitten confessed, shiveringly, that she had tried to run away. She had gathered what money she could, a pitifully small horde, and had gone to the station. But when she tried to buy a ticket a man stepped up to her.

"I wouldn't do that, Miss Day," he had said.

She had turned on him furiously. And he had pulled his coat back so she saw a badge pinned to the underside. "Deputy Sheriff" was engraved on the silver.

"Do you think they're always watching me, Emmy? Someone always watching?"

"Don't mind, Kitten-kid. It will be over sometime. Let's try to forget it."

But Emily couldn't forget. There were mornings going down to the shop when she remembered a long-ago experience; that moment of hesitation in the doorway at Anne Morrow's party. The eyes. Eyes everywhere, all focused upon herself. Round stares, appraising and criticizing. And herself standing alone.

Not that she was stared at now. Few knew of Kitten's connection with the Wickert killing. But she felt herself isolated and grew abnormally sensitive; in time she got to thinking of the illusion of eyes as Public Opinion. Her thought shrank before it.

She told Frances something of this and the astute mind suspected the rest. After that Frances insisted upon her going about a great deal. She would plan pleasant little drives to near-by towns and even trips to the city. But it made small difference. The only occasions upon which Emily felt really comfortable were those which placed her alone with her partner in the house at Great View.

Being much by herself, she began to give way to curious fancies. She thought often of the night Marty had come to say he was going to law school, and of the chill which had struck through her for no reason at all.

Marty and Kent each entering the same profession; two whose lives met because of hers somewhat as two lines of a triangle are joined by a third. She had wondered about the impression then.

But it seemed clear enough now. Kent, whom she had loved, prosecuting her sister, perhaps, on a charge of murder. And Marty, whom she had feared and disliked, coming to her aid.

Existence held strange ironies; played unreasonable jokes.

One day Stella telephoned. She was living in South Lyall and wished to see her old friend.

So on a noon hour Emily called at the little apartment. Stella, grown thin and rather woe-begone, greeted her solemnly and took her at once to the wicker cradle where her small son slept.

"He's a bright, lovely baby, Em. Sometimes it almost seems he knows things. All about me. I think he's sorry for me the way he looks with his black eyes soft and round. Whatever comes I've got him. Something to live for."

It was easy to see she wasn't happy; there was an atmosphere of desolation in the rooms.

"Does Skeets love him, dear?"

Stella dropped her hands, palms up; it was, Emily reflected, as if she were letting something slip away. "Skeets hardly looks at him. That's all over though; I've been hurt so much I don't seem to feel any more.

"I'm going to leave him, Em. No use dragging out a life like this. I said I would make him love me, didn't I? But I couldn't. No one could. He hasn't anything to love with; no heart.

"Oh, I don't blame him too much," she went on, listlessly. "A boy brought up with the idea that the world and everything in it are his for the taking. Of course he'd be selfish. That's what too much money does for them, Emmy.

"He's had his own friends right from the start and they don't want me. He's gone his way just as he pleased and if ever I had anything to say he's thrown it up how he married me.

"Watch out for his kind, Emmy. But I guess you'll do that. I remember how your father used to talk."

NIP PRISON RIOT

DASH OF TWO IN ATLANTA FOILED

ATLANTA, Ga., July 19.—(AP.)—Atlanta Federal Penitentiary was besieged for a time from within by two desperate prisoners armed with smuggled weapons last night.

With three other long-term convicts they were in solitary confinement today while a guard was nursing a minor scalp wound, the only casuality of a 30-minute gun battle.

A near riot was precipitated during an exercise period in the prison yard about dusk, when Roy Gardner and Joe Urbaytis, serving 50 to 60 year terms for mail robbery and notorious as "escape artists," were seen at the inner wall. Guard Captain Clarence L. Parker and Guard Bunce who found the pair in the act of climbing an improvised ladder, were confronted with drawn revolvers. Bunce was clipped on the head.

Before the remainder of the prisoners knew what had happened, the plotters had marched Parker and two other guards who rushed up, through the first gate toward freedom. On nearing the second gate they opened fire on tower sentries, using the guards as shields. Balked in this effort, practically because Capt. Parker threw his keys through the gate grating, they surrendered to a score or so of armed guards, after a fierce exchange of bullets, during which none was hit.

Meanwhile the prisoners in the clamor. Guards later herded them into their cell blocks with difficulty.

Prisoners identified at the office of Warden John W. Snook as Carrigan, Ohio, and Andrews and his son, convicted of mail robbery in New Jersey, were placed in solitary confinement as confederates, although only Gardner and Urbaytis joined in the actual delivery attempted.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Former Pittsburgh Girl, Now Noted Singer of London, England, to Arrive Here Monday

YOU remember, don't you, my telling you that Mrs. Frederick G. Hawdon, the former Etta Keil, is coming here to visit her old home city? The date of her arrival has been fixed now, I hear, and she will come next Monday and be the guest of Miss M. Marsh Rees, of South Negley avenue, all next week. Mrs. Hawdon, you know, lives in Berkhamsted, England, and she has not visited here for more than 20 years. She landed in New York on July 8, and since then she has been visiting her brother, Augustus L. Keil, at his summer home, Spray Beach, Beach Haven, N. J. Mr. Hawdon came to the United States with his wife and has been making a number of business trips about the country, but he hopes to be able to come to Pittsburgh while Mrs. Hawdon is here.

Mrs. Hawdon has many old friends here, naturally, since she was such a well-known musician. Perhaps you remember that she was soprano soloist at the Church of the Ascension, where, by the way, she was married. On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Hawdon will be informally "at home," and she is hoping to meet all the friends of her early Pittsburgh days.

Miss Rees will have as her guest next week, too, Mrs. Hawdon's sister, Mrs. Helen Keil White, of Chicago. Mrs. White has been visiting in Dormont for a while and she is going to join Miss Rees at her home on Sunday and remain throughout her sister's visit in Pittsburgh.

WEREN'T you surprised to hear that Jean Browne Scott had broken her engagement? Jean was to have married Nigel Claudian Colman, who is a member of the British Parliament, next Wednesday in Christ Church, London, but her father, John R. K. Scott, has just sent a cablegram to friends in Philadelphia, saying that the wedding will not take place.

Jean was here for the horse show in June, you know, and we were regretting then that it would be, in all probability, the last time she would enter her horses in the local show. But now, perhaps, we will see her here again.

From the rather meager reports, the engagement was broken by mutual agreement because of a lack of congeniality of temperament. Jean's mother and her father and her brother, Hardie, had, of course, already gone over for the wedding and so had Janet Hardie, her Pittsburgh cousin, and Elizabeth Gillespie Alcorn, of Bryn Mawr, who were to have been the maids of honor. They landed in England several days ago.

AND still the local folks are flocking to Europe. An interesting trip is planned by Miss Dorothy Liggett, of Frederick avenue, Sewickley, and Mrs. Rachel Wade, of Pittsburgh. They left early in the week for New York and are sailing on the Lapland for France and there they will make a motor trip through Brittany.

Going in the opposite direction are the Ralph W. Harbisons and their son, Frederick. With Sir Reginald Patterson and Morton Burden, Jr., the Harbisons left Tuesday night to spend several weeks at Valley Ranch, Wyoming.

A LUNCHEON was given last Saturday in Webster Hall in honor of Miss Erma Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Gray, of Dormont avenue, Dormont, whose marriage to Harold R. Hollis, of Mt. Washington, will be solemnized July 28.

ONLY the immediate families were present at the wedding of Miss Gladys L. Meyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Meyers, of Fifth street, Aspinwall, and C. Maxwell Creasy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton B. Creasy, of Brilliant avenue, Aspinwall, which was solemnized yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock in the Meyers home by the Rev. C. J. Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Aspinwall. The bride wore a period gown of white satin and duchesse lace, and she carried a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Martha Meyers, as her sister's maid of honor, appeared in embroidered coral georgette and carried butterfly roses. Floyd L. Meyers, of Philadelphia, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Creasy have left for an extensive trip and after September 1 will be at home in Ninth street, Aspinwall.

THE first reunion of the Wray family was held July 12 at Robert Wray's grove, at Elrama, Pa. At the business meeting, which followed the dinner, the following officers were elected: President, F. S. Wray, of Burgettstown; vice presidents, J. Wallace Wray, of Elizabeth, and James B. Wray, of Finleyville; secretary, Mrs. Beryl A. Grine, of Floreffe, Pa.; assistant secretary, Mrs. Mary Wray, of Elrama, and treasurer, John Blumenstein, of Elrama. The next reunion will be held at the same place on the second Thursday of next July.

MISS ELIZABETH ANNA MALCOLM, daughter of Mrs. J. N. Malcolm, of Maple avenue, North Side, has chosen September 3 as the date for her marriage to Robert F. Clemens, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Clemens, of Mt. Lebanon. Miss Malcolm is a Pennsylvania College for Women graduate and Mr. Clemens attended the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

MISS MARY HELEN CRUSAN, daughter of Col. C. B. Crusan, of Philadelphia, formerly of Pittsburgh, is visiting her cousin, Miss Martha Isabel Deems, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Rodger Deems, of Sprague avenue, Bellevue.

STERLING COURT, No. 50, Order of the Amaranth, will hold a card party tonight in the Moose Temple, Penn avenue. Mrs. C. N. Moore is chairman.

AMONG the Pittsburghers in Atlantic City are Mrs. George Markel and her son, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Stoebner, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Purtell, Mrs. H. W. Stoebner and her son and Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Mullen.

GLASS PAY INCREASE CALLED IMPOSSIBLE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 19.—(AP.)—The chance of wage increases for workers in the Glass Industry is very slight, according to E. J. Barry of Toledo, O., president of the National Association of Pressed and Blown Glassware Manufacturers which is in conference here with the American Flint Glassware Union. The heavy competition from foreign glass manufacturers operating with low labor costs, and, an usually low duty make it impossible to grant wage increases at the time, Barry said.

She left me... then I overheard her whisper "B. O." (Body Odor)

"JUST the faintest murmur . . . but I caught it.

"'B.O.'... what could she mean? What was Helen saying about me . . . behind my back? How cool she had acted lately. How reluctant she had been to accept my invitations to the club parties. And that silly excuse of hers for leaving me on the porch and going inside.

"'B.O.'... and suddenly . . . like a flash in the dark . . . the truth burst upon me, Body Odor!

"That explained it all . . . the girls dropping me . . . my troubles at the office. Body Odor! The truth hurt. But I'm thankful that I did overhear. Body odor isn't a handicap to me now."

So easy to prevent body odor

Many people, both men and women, miss out on popularity and success in life . . . because of body odor.

They think they're safe—when actually science says no one is immune from this unpardonable offense. We can't tell when we offend, for our own sense of smell becomes deadened to familiar odors. But others always know—and criticize us behind our backs.

We can't help perspiring. It's natural, healthful. Even on a cool day we perspire as much as a quart of odor-causing waste. And in summer, warmer weather and greater activity cause more perspiration than ever.

Keeps pores purified

Thus the safest thing for every one is to be on guard . . . always. And the easiest, pleasantest way is to prevent the odor by using Lifebuoy regularly. With its gloriously refreshing and abundant antiseptic lather, Lifebuoy deeply deodorizes all the pores. Doesn't hide the odor . . . or merely neutralize it . . . but actually removes its cause, giving bath-to-bath freshness of body.

Makes complexions healthier

Lifebuoy is also fine for the skin. Its mild, antiseptic lather purifies face pores, keeps complexions fresh and clear, just glowing with radiant health. And Lifebuoy is used by millions as a health safeguard, because it removes germs.

You will learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse. Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

Powder Means Much to Me
By Edna Wallace Hopper

The average woman considers the actress hopelessly ahead of her in the art of enhancing natural beauty.

The reason for this advantage is that the actress makes a business of attracting and she must "know how." It is her bread and butter.

In the matter of powder, for instance, my forty-odd years on the stage have made me almost unbelievably exacting. I never considered the cost of my powder, so long as it pleased me.

Edna Wallace Hopper as she looks today

After years of searching I found in France the powder that now adds the last touch to my careful toilette. It satisfies me because it has the one quality I have found in no other powder. That is, it blends so smoothly with the texture of my skin that my face never looks "made up" when I am offstage.

Because it lends such natural bloom I call it my Youth Powder. In the immense quantities now produced I am able to offer it to women at a low price.

If your skin requires a clinging powder I advise using my Youth Powder in the Heavy Type. It also can be had in the Light Type. Both have the same delicate elusive fragrance.

Get either type in Flesh, Brunette or White at any toilet counter.

ASKS SMITH QUIT

CLERK SERVING PATRON, ROBBERS LOOT REGISTER

Threatening a clerk and a customer in the confectionery store of Mrs. C. Stoyer, at 717 North Lang avenue, late last night, two armed bandits looted the cash register of $25. They escaped in an automobile. Walter Toas, the clerk, was waiting on George Abel, of 6613 Shetland avenue, when the holdup men entered. One robber covered the pair while the other took the money.

"DROP RACE FOR PRESIDENCY—" M'SPARRAN

LANCASTER, Pa., July 19.—A demand that Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, resign as Democratic presidential nominee was made here by John A. McSparran, Democratic delegate-at-large to the Houston convention.

McSparran, who shortly after the convention threatened to bolt the party and withdraw as Democratic candidate for Congress from this district, demanded that John Raskob, national chairman, also resign.

The McSparran demand was made in a letter addressed to Raskob in answer to one sent all delegates to the Houston convention. In his letter Raskob had announced he favored local option on the prohibition question.

"The best thing I can suggest is for both of you, Smith and Raskob, to resign before you get the darndest licking that anyone ever got in a presidential election, and give the party a chance to take up the real issues with men who are willing to stand on a legally drawn platform," McSparran wrote.

McSparran is a former master of the Pennsylvania State Grange and was once Democratic candidate for Governor.

Not often is there an opportunity like this to secure a quality gas range like the nationally famous Estate at prices so far below the usual. We have only a limited quantity left in 14 different models and sizes. While we cannot furnish right or left-hand ovens in all models advertised, you undoubtedly can find an all-enamel or semi-enamel first-class range to fit your needs ... and at a bargain. Some have oven heat control. Terms are easy and convenient, too.

THREE GIFTS BOOST ICE FUND

The number of responses to the plea that some one lift The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund to $600 was most gratifying. Several such gifts have been received and already the fund is well on its way to $700. In fact, it totals today $647.01 and if somebody would like to make it $700 those in charge of the fund would be most grateful and the 300 babies would be all the happier. One of the gifts intended to help the fund reach the $600 mark comes from Mrs. John M. Milliken with a cordial little note of good wishes and still another is from W. H. K., one of the fund's numerous anonymous well wishers.

The third in today's trio of gifts is from a quartet of Raleigh street children whose acquaintance with the fund is not new. Last year they contributed their time and thought and money and again have raised $8.50, the proceeds of a candy stand which they conducted for several days. The young philanthropist-salespeople are Ben Brandon, Lewis J. Robb, Jr., Florence Cohen and Melvin Shapiro, none of whom has yet reached the 'teen age.

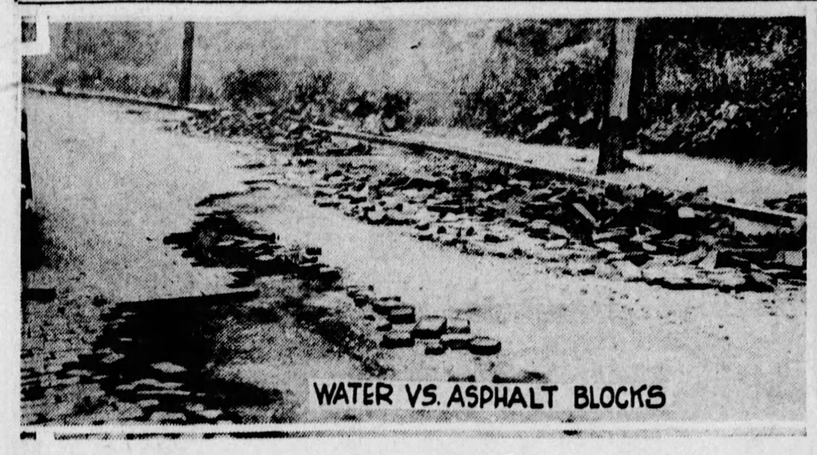
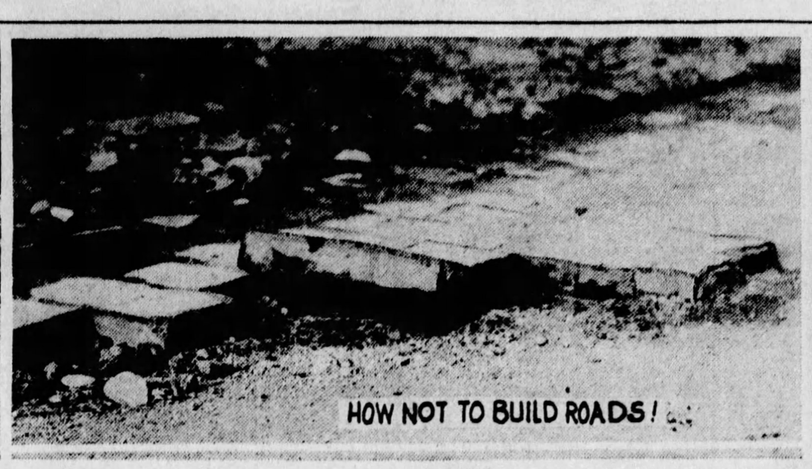
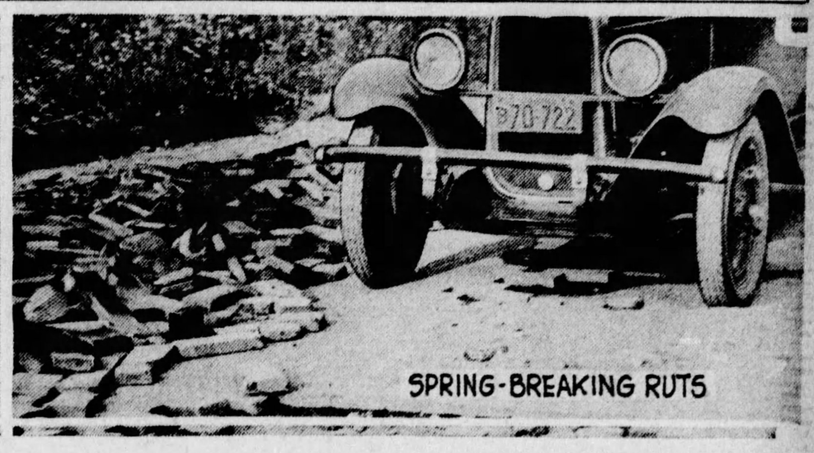
City Learns -:- OBJECT LESSON: WHAT FLOODS DO TO ROADS -:- Beck's Run







PHOTOS BY THE SUN-TELEGRAPH.

APPROPRIATION

An emergency appropriation of $45,000 has been authorized by City Council to repair damage done by floods to Beck's Run road. This road, built in 1922 by Thomas Crorin Company on a contract awarded by Allegheny county, was made of asphalt blocks laid on a concrete foundation.

NOT ON EDGE

Flood waters forced beneath these blocks, which were laid flat side up, not on edge as is the case with ordinary brick roads, and ripped them from the foundation. The money will be used to resurface damaged portions of the road, dredge the water course and repair curbs and walls.

RE-SURFACE?

Members of Council, after a personal investigation, expressed the opinion that as soon as funds are available all of the blocks should be removed and the entire road resurfaced with asphalt. These photographs show the manner in which the thin, flat blocks were torn from the foundation by the flood.

SKYWARD

by Commander Richard E. Byrd

Byrd Starts on North Pole Expedition With 50 Men After Months of Toil

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Commander Byrd first trained for a seafaring profession, but later became interested in aviation. He has described the dangers of pioneer flying and the crash of the America. During the war he was assigned to establish an air unit at Halifax, N. S. He described the adventurous flights of the first aviators to cross the Atlantic Ocean. He advocated the creation of a Bureau of Aeronautics in the Navy Department. Due to missing a train he failed to make the fatal test flight on the ZR-2. He told of the adventures encountered on his first visit to the North Polar regions by plane.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Byrd Given Leave

CHAPTER XVIII.

THERE were two fairly good reasons for our wanting to fly to the North Pole: First, by traveling at high altitude over unexplored regions we might discover some new land or unexpected scientific phenomena; second, a successful flight, like the first crossing of the Atlantic, would be sure to accelerate public interest in aviation.

We could have used any one of three places for our attack upon the Pole: Point Barrow, Etah and Spitzbergen.

Point Barrow, Alaska, is not accessible on account of the ice until late summer, except by a long flight over the mountains. By that time clear weather over the Polar Sea is replaced by fog. It is the northernmost point of Alaska, but nearly 400 miles farther from the pole than Etah or Spitzbergen.

Etah is reasonably accessible by August 1, but presents no good takeoff for a land plane. Moreover, it is foggy and the local winds are sudden and strong. In contrast, the ice surrounding Spitzbergen is subject to the warming influence of the Gulf Stream. On that account, Kings Bay, which is only 750 miles from the pole, can be reached as early as April. Unquestionably it is best suited for an attack on the earth's north polar axis.

Bryd's Plan

My plan was to fly westward at first and explore that part of the north end of Greenland known as Peary Land. I hoped to come down on some large snowdrift, using skis, and leave supplies in case we were forced to walk back from near the pole.

Neither Bennett nor I could begin serious work of preparation until January, 1926. Then Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and my chief, Admiral Moffett, allowed Bennett and me leave. We were going this time on our own hook. From then on came a crescendo of toil which culminated when we sailed from the Brooklyn Navy Yard on April 5.

We selected for our flight a Fokker three-engine monoplane.

One was available that had already flown 20,000 miles. The plane was 42 feet 9 inches long in body, with a wing spread of 63 feet 3 inches. Two 160-gallon gasoline tanks were set in the center of each wing; and two others, each holding 110 gallons, were carried in the fuselage. The additional gasoline we might need we decided to carry in five-gallon cans.

Plane Named

We named the plane Josephine Ford in honor of Edsel Ford's 3-year-old daughter, as Edsel had taken a greater interest in our expedition than anyone else. Careful tests of the plane were made before we sailed. Its fuel consumption at cruising speed was 27 or 28 gallons per hour—lower than was anticipated, and therefore most encouraging. It was capable of a speed as high as 120 miles an hour.

Through the generosity of the Shipping Board I was able to secure the steamer Chantier. She was of about 3,500 tons displacement and had ample deck space for our flying gear, while her hold took the plane's wings and body.

There were half a hundred members of the expedition, nearly all volunteers. I selected them primarily by writing to nearly all of the men who had had 16 and 20 years in the Navy and were then in the reserves. We obtained the others by culling out the best of the thousands who had volunteered from all over the country.

The commandant of the Marine Corps gave two of his best men leave, Charles Kessler and R. McKee, a private and a corporal. My two radio operators were ex-marines who had just resigned from the service, Lloyd K. Greenlie and George H. James. Another marine, Touchett, had just been paid off. Aviation Machinist's Mate Leo M. Peterson was given leave from the Navy. The Marine Reserves granted Lieut. A. N. Parker permission to leave the country.

Through the help of the Shipping Board I secured Capt. M. J. Brennan, an ex-naval reserve man; F. deLucca, ex-bluejacket; J. A. Slaughter, a second mate, and E. J. Nolan, a third mate. The Weather Bureau in Washington loaned me W. C. Haines, one of their most valuable physicists. My boatswain, Jim Madison, was an old navy shipmate of mine. A. C. Geisler, who went as a seaman, had become a friend in a Washington gymnasium I frequented, where he was known as the "strong man." John Hopkins University loaned us the services of Daniel O'Brien to go as expedition surgeon.

It was Geisler who took an oath not to shave until we had flown across the North Pole. He grew a huge bush during the weeks of preparation. When the time came for his great shave he found himself in the hands of the whole crew, who took delight in doing the job for him.

Volunteers Board Boat

Joe Deganahl came aboard with bag and baggage the day we left New York and said he had to go. I looked him over, sized him up as a good man and took him. He turned out to be a perfect wonder. Winston Ehrgott and Paul Todaro also came aboard with baggage on the last day and announced that they had to go. Mind you, I had never even heard of them before. They were ex-West Pointers. I had a hunch and took them. They, too, lived up to expectations. In the interests of truth I must record that Ehrgott was put to work at washing dishes. But when he broke twenty dishes in the first five minutes I had to shift him to a detail that could better withstand his energy.

Roy Bryant, a captain in the Army Reserves during the war, and John Reed, a lieutenant in the Army Reserves, both heroes, went as ordinary seamen. Utterly without sea experience, they knuckled down and stood hardships and toil like old mariners.

Of course there were feminine applicants for jobs on the expedition but not many of them. Just before we left New York harbor a very pretty young lady came out in a launch with her complete baggage and declared that she was going along. She wanted to write the history of the expedition. It took a good deal of tact to persuade her that our quota was already full.

Leave for North Pole

I think the most heart-breaking job I had before we left was that of raising funds. I hated to be a beggar. A few men were so generous that I disliked asking them for more. But several times I was on the verge of bankruptcy before we sailed. And if the expedition had failed, which it might well have done with all hope centered in just one plane, I should still be trying to pay back my obligations.

In spite of many supplies and much equipment that were either donated free or given at cost by patriotic concerns, we had to raise over $100,000. As it was, I left with a deficit of more than $20,000. Being personally responsible for this amount and since it would grow during my absence, life was not the only thing I was risking.

After months of toil on the part of all hands, we left New York on April 5, 1926, with half a hundred men and six months' food supply aboard. I suspect to this day that Capt. Brennan and his three mates from the Merchant Marine had many misgivings in starting out on a 10,000 mile cruise with a ship's company made up mostly of rank landlubbers. As for Chief Engineer Mulroy, I look on his achievement of teaming north and back without a single breakdown as something close to a miracle.

We had coal for 15,000 miles of steaming stowed away in the bunkers in the hold. It was a stiff job shifting this coal from the hold to the bunkers, a very dirty job that had to be done every single day. Most of the landlubbers were staggering with seasickness while they worked.

The second night out from port a fellow tried to slouch past me on deck. When I shot my flashlight into his face to my astonishment I recognized my old friend, Malcom P. Hanson, civilian employe of the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington. "I confess to stowing away, Commander," he said. He had not finished his work on our radio before we left. It was too late for him to get leave. So he took the bull by the horns and stowed away. He did not want to give me the responsibility of taking him, so he took the responsibility himself though he was due for a promotion.

BABCOCK PRESENTS TROPHIES

Distinguished guests and champion boy golfers were numbered among those who attended The Sun-Telegraph's William Randolph Hearst golf tournament dinner at the Fort Pitt Hotel last night. Photo shows, left to right: Front row—Mike Bakos, winner of fourth place in the sub-junior class; Arthur Weltner, only boy to score a hole in one; Hull Wilson, consolation winner in the sub-junior class, and Steve Slivika, winner of the sub-junior class. Back row—Howard Brubach, consolation winner in the junior class; Andy Petrolia, caddie master at Schenley Park; County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, who presented the prizes; John Slocum, third-place winner, junior class; John Jay Burke, U. S. G. A., public links section executive committeeman; James Scajbarretti, third-place victor, sub-junior class; Vernon A. Swartsfager, golf editor of The Sun-Telegraph; Joseph Curto, tournament champion, and Tom O'Keefe, time clerk at Schenley Park.

Commissioner Babcock also presented the other prizes to the victors in the record-breaking field. There were 128 awards in all.

CARRANZA HONORED HERE

While a small crowd of Pittsburghers stood in the Pennsylvania Railroad station early today, waiting to honor the memory of Capt. Amilio Carranza, Mexico's hero aviator, whose body passed through the city on a special train, a similar group had just completed a vain wait in hope of seeing Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the Atlantic, whose train preceded that bearing the dead aviator.

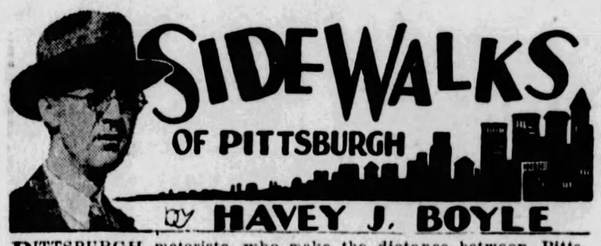
A squad of United States soldiers from the recruiting office here formed a guard of honor that patroled the platform beside the train bearing Carranza's body. The train arrived at 2:40 o'clock and stopped but 10 minutes, only long enough to change engines. It then continued on to St. Louis, on its way South to Mexico City.

SLEEP THROUGH

Miss Earhart, with William Stultz and Louis Gordon, her companions on her trans-Atlantic flight, were asleep in a special car when it arrived here, attached to the Broadway Limited at 1:35. A five-minute stop was made. The party is en route to Chicago from Altoona and Williamsburg, where they visited yesterday. Williamsburg is Stultz's home town.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE



PITTSBURGH motorists who make the distance between Pittsburgh and Butler in an hour consider themselves making good time. Only expert drivers can do this consistently, owing to the number of curves in the road.

Discussion of this matter caused Harry Dipple, the East Ender, to recall the time he bet a man $100 he could make Butler from East Liberty in 55 minutes. Harry made a trial run and accomplished the feat in something less than the time stipulated. On the day of the wager-run he started away from East Liberty with much wim, wigor and witality, but he hadn't gone four squares before something happened which tossed him out of the car onto his somewhat foolish head. He lost the bet, as unfortunately he had to be taken to a hospital.

Losing the bet never weighed on Harry so heavily as the fact that the man with whom he wagered called at the hospital, not to ask how the patient was getting along, but to inquire how soon he could count on getting the $100. And after he collected, that was the last Harry ever saw of the man.

In discussing driving between here and Butler, Mr. Dipple invariably rubs a reminiscent hand over a certain bump on his knob.

Prescott Smith, who mingles with some of the boys along motor row, opined that in the matter of driving, what always got his nanny was the way some drivers, not going any place in particular, feel they have to emulate Oldfield. He recalled that recently a speeder just managed to make the hole between Smith's eastbound machine and a machine westbound. The speeder just made it. About five minutes later Smith was surprised to see the speeder eating an ice cream cone in front of a bar-b-q stand. "That boy must have been plenty hungry for that cone," Mr. Smith concluded.

THERE was a time when automobile salesmen deemed it necessary to burn up every highway in sight, but as the boys are getting older they are becoming wiser. Some of them still travel fast, but they no longer take any chances.

We once rode to Philadelphia with Jimmy Crowley, one of the best drivers in Pittsburgh, and while we made the distance in remarkable time, there was not once when he ever took a chance in passing another car, and the way he stuck religiously to his side of the road was an inspiration.

THE taxi drivers are capable engineers, but they miss 100 per cent because they needlessly apply the brakes too hurriedly, causing a screeching that tries the nerves of passengers, pedestrians and fellow motorists.

* * *

The boys who handle the big trucks along the city streets seldom get in any collisions. The reason is because other motorists, when they see a truck turning a corner, always say, expectfully: "You first, Alphonse," and the truck boys always say: "You bet, Gaston."

ADVERTISING CLUB INSTALLS OFFICERS

TERMS ONE YEAR

Pittsburgh Advertising Club has installed officers elected for the coming year. They are (left to right): Fred W. Morgan, treasurer; R. B. McDaniel, vice president; W. H. McBride, president; J. A. Mr. McBride is secretary and advertising manager, Gainaday Electric Company; Mr. McDaniel is a member of the agency staff, Ketchum, MacLeod & Grove, Inc.; Mr. Cullison is sales promotion manager, National Fire Proofing Company, and Mr. Morgan is manager of the classified advertising department, Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

Will Rogers Says

GALLUP, N. M., July 19.

I had just finished writing about Carranza, my little Mexican friend, when now comes the death of another. Nobody that enjoys humor could help but be crazy about Obregon. I never met a public man in any country with as many laughs tucked away as he had.

After escaping one assassination while I was there he spent over a thousand dollars answering congratulatory telegrams on his escape. He said to me, "I can't afford to be missed again. It's cheaper to be hit."

He gave me a beautiful memento of my Mexican trip and came to the flying field to see me off. I think Mexico has lost a real patriot.

That country certainly don't deserve all this hard luck.

Yours, WILL.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

LOTTA MADDEN, soprano, will be heard as guest artist in the Goldman band concert to be broadcast over the NBC System, including WCAE, at 9 o'clock tonight. She will sing two numbers—"Homing," by Del Riego, and Massenet's "Open Thy Blue Eyes." Among the band numbers will be Svendsen's "Swedish Cornation March" and excerpts from Wagner's opera, "Die Meistersingers."

"In a Persian Garden," a song cycle with music by Liza Lehmann, will be presented by a mixed quartet over KDKA and other NBC stations at 9 o'clock. The words of the songs have been selected from Fitzgerald's translation of "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam."

During the Maxwell hour at 9:30 o'clock—another NBC presentation to be heard over KDKA—the Old Colonel's boyhood friend, played by Edgar White Burrill, will tell how the women of the South entertained the First Lady of the Land" at the Old Maxwell House when McKinley was President. The musical program will include the "Theme Song" from the new talking motion picture, "Lilac Time," and written by Nathaniel Shilkret, director of the orchestra. Cadman's "At Dawning" and Chaminade's "Autumn" will be other orchestra selections.

Samuel Insull, nationally known businessman, will be guest speaker during the Halsey-Stuart hour, a network feature to be heard over WCAE at 10 o'clock. There will be a musical program also.

Statement made to Society Reporter of leading New York Newspaper

IT ALL started when cigarettes were offered. Everyone refused, and lit their own. Five persons . . . four different brands. That started the talk on cigarette tastes—whether people spoof themselves on likes and dislikes. Someone suggested the blindfold test to find out. We pooled cigarettes, four of the best known brands. I blindfolded each guest in turn, they smoked four cigarettes, and called their preference. Three out of four chose OLD GOLDS.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Dolly Winston---Manager

By LOUIS P. ARMSTRONG

"SHE'S a miserable old busybody, and I won't have her living with us," said Amelia Judd with tears in her eyes. "Jonas says his mother comes first," she added bitterly.

"He didn't really mean that," Dolly Winston consoled her. "Have another cup of tea, Amelia."

"I'm never going to live in the same house with my son when he's married," Minna Davison remarked.

"But you're such a charming woman, Mrs. Davison, you take things so placidly and I don't believe you'd ever interfere. Old Mrs. Judd's different," Amelia told her emphatically, her little mouth trembling.

Dolly Winston smiled at her two friends. It was obvious that handsome, sophisticated Minna Davison had won the heart of the little wife of Jonas Judd.

Suddenly Dolly had an idea.

"Amelia, dont make any more objections to Mrs. Judd's visit. Let her come on, for an indefinite stay—then we'll see.'

"You say the old lady is well off, can live in comparative comfort on her own money?"

"Yes, that's what makes it so hard. There's no reason why she should plant herself on us.

An hour later, when the younger of Dolly's friends had hurried home to attend to the many duties devolving on a farmer's wife, Minna went with her hostess into the kitchen to watch her prepare the evening meal, before Tom Winston should return from his office.

"It's nice to be with you, dear," Minna said. "You've no idea how depressed I get, with George away on long trips and son Ralph at college."

"A traveling man's wife has to become accustomed to solitude," Dolly observed. "But a woman can always interest herself in housework, Minna."

"I can't," Minna confessed. "I find it a dreadful bore. I like to read and do a little sewing. If we were a bit more prosperous, Dolly, I'd have a housekeeper—some nice old soul alone in the world.

"Then I've solved the problem," cried Dolly. "Amelia needn't worry any more about her abominable mother-in-law—I'll phone her tonight."

Tom Winston had come in quietly, through the outer kitchen door, and had heard Dolly's last speech. He frowned seriously at his blue-eyed better-half.

"Sticking that funny little nose into other people's domestic affairs is going to cause trouble sooner or later," he said. "What's this about Amelia Judd's mother-in-law?"

"She's a Class A housekeeper, Tom," Dolly told him, administering a hug that left a smudge of flour on his lapel and kissing him affectionately. "She's a perfect shark of an organizer, a zinging good boss; she likes to take charge. Amelia is touchy about her housekeeping, and housekeeping bores our friend Minna to tears. Wouldn't it be heavenly if Amelia's mother-in-law could be switched to Minna? The lovely creature could then spend all her time being beautiful, and improving her mind with books!"

Minna Davison did an unusual thing on the following Saturday. She invited friends in to tea. George, her husband, was home. He was delighted to see the Winstons, who arrived early. "But who are these Judds Minna's been so reticent about?" asked Tom.

"Jonas Judd's a farmer," Tom replied.

The Judds arrived in Jonas' new car. Minna had never seen either Jonas or his mother before; Dolly observed her silently studying them, while George, as usual, did the honors.

George replenished the wood fire, made everybody comfortable, got a stool for old Mrs. Judd's feet and pulled down the window-shade, seeing that the afternoon sun was making a glare in her eyes. Lastly he rolled in the tea-wagon, and lit the alcohol lamp under the brass kettle.

Old Mrs. Judd seemed astonished at his activities and pleased at the attentions paid her. But she stared reprovingly at Minna. Minna sat across from her on the couch, looking lovely in a jade green gown with a collar of topaz set in gold about her white throat. "She's a beautiful woman," the old lady told Dolly in grudging admiration. "No wonder her nice husband waits on her."

"She's had a sad life," Dolly whispered in an undertone. "For years she really slaved, as a model and a dancer in New York. She isn't used to domestic duties—they bore her, and George knows it. She's thinking of getting a housekeeper, a sort of companion who will relieve her of the management of her home."

Old Mrs. Judd watched George Davison critically for several minutes at his tea-making; finally as though she could contain herself no longer, she sprang up, almost falling over the footstool in her eagerness. "Here Mr. Davison, let me do that! Never saw a man yet who could brew tea properly!"

Dolly giggled as the front door of their neighbors' home closed behind her and Tom. "I saw her looking at the dust on the mantel and sniffing," she said. "Minna's lazy maid is going to have a difficult time from now on!"

"What do you mean, from now on?" Tom asked. "Nothing's settled yet."

"But she told me as I sat beside her that Minna really needed a companion. She said Jonas was very trying sometimes, and she had serious misgivings about coming to live here with him and Amelia. She said young folks were better off alone—and she believed she'd come and see Minna some morning next week when they could have a good long talk together."

"She found Jonas wouldn't let her rule the roost," Tom said dryly. "But she's so officious, how do you know she'll get on with the Davisons?"

"Because George likes comfort, and Minna likes having her responsibilities shouldered," Dolly laughed gaily.

"Jonas was right," she added a moment later when they had turned into the gateway of their own home, "when he said his mother came first—but Amelia needn't have worried—for he didn't say where!"

Foot Pains Ended Overnight Says Local Barber

Tells how Coolene banished all burning and aching immediately

TAKE Mr. Guy Lozito's word for it—nothing knocks a man out so quickly as foot tortures. Mr. Lozito, who is a barber right here in Pittsburgh, recently began to be bothered with burning, aching feet. So much standing made them sore and sensitive. Still he had to be on the job—smiling in spite of the pain. You can't give haircuts and shaves from a wheel-chair, and Mr. Lozito knew that unless he ended his foot troubles, they would interfere with his job. One day he read about Coolene, and he decided to try it. Here's what happened in his own words:

"Nothing can make a man lose his good humor as quickly as burning, aching feet. When my feet first became sore and calloused I knew that unless I found relief at once it would interfere with my job. A barber can't afford to be cranky, but can anyone smile when every step is torture? One day I read how Coolene cools and heals burning, sore feet, and I decided to try it. It worked like magic—made me feel like a two-year old. It ended my foot troubles overnight. Today I'm on my feet as much as ever, but I haven't had any trouble since I first used Coolene. It makes my feet feel cool and peppy all day."

Now you, too, can enjoy instant relief from tired, aching, burning feet. Coolene, a marvelous new ivory-white soothing cream, contains rare oils—and frankincense and myrrh—used by the ancients for centuries to heal foot tortures caused by hot desert sands.

It penetrates at once to the inflamed nerves—soothes and cools them—relieves congestion in the tiny veins. Almost instantly all foot miseries vanish and your aching feet feel new and refreshed.

No need now for messy foot-baths, powders or plasters that irritate the skin. Coolene is greaseless, vanishes instantly, cannot stain. Satisfaction guaranteed or small cost refunded. Sold and recommended by May's Drug Stores.

Coolene is securing these remarkable results not only in this city but everywhere. Mr. V. F. Grieco another popular barber who must be on his feet many hours a day, says, "Coolene ended my foot troubles almost at once."

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE WEEKLY ROAST

MODERN MARRIAGE: A non-stop flight of fancy, ending in a nosedive for Reno.

The hardest thing to make any man believe is that when a woman is "through," she is THROUGH, and not just waiting to be coaxed to begin all over again.

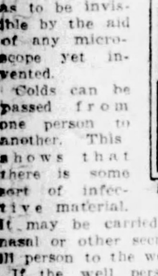
The sweetest part of a kiss, to a man, is the moment of expectation just before; to a woman, it is the memory, afterward.



HELEN ROWLAND

It is difficult for men to reconcile the modern girl's vivid interest in silk stockings and lipsticks with real brains; but a man's enthusiasm for golf, baseball and aurora borealis sweaters never seems to them incompatible with superior intelligence.

Painting, as a feminine accomplishment, went out of fashion at just about the moment when the new dances came in and afforded a woman a simpler and easier way of getting into a man's arms.

That faraway, contemplative smile on a man's face may mean that he is thinking something nice about you—and again (and more likely), it may mean that he has just thought of something nice about himself.

Somehow, it was lots easier to get the lawn cut, the car washed and the piazza painted in the good old days before the spread of the golf mania.

The man who is the most desperately in love is usually the one who comes out of it filled with the bitterest cynicism, just as the man who has been the life of the party the night before has the worst headache next morning.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Low Vitality Invites All Common Colds

ALL sorts of efforts have been made to find the germ of the common cold. If it is due to a germ, it may well be that it is one so small as to be invisible by the aid of any microscope yet invented.

DR. COPELAND

Colds can be passed from one person to another. This shows that there is some sort of infective material. It may be carried through the nasal or other secretions of the ill person to the well one.

If the well person is really well, if he is properly fed, free from undue fatigue, and functioning normally, he is likely to be safe. There must be lowered vitality, as well as the presence of the infective substance, in order to "catch cold."

The scientists have taken the secretions from diseased tissues, passed them through a stone filter, and caught the clear fluid which results. Under the microscope the liquid appears entirely free from visible substance, yet it may be capable of producing disease. It may contain what is called a "filterable virus." That is, it possesses in its solution some sort of poison which will cause definite symptoms of disease.

Several American and foreign scientists claim that common colds are caused by a filterable virus. They contend that colds may be produced by the filtrate, prepared as I have told you.

There is much to support the theory that colds are "catching," that they may be passed from one person to another. In sneezing and coughing, in talking loudly and in spitting, the spray containing the infective material is thrown out and may be inhaled by another. Soiled hands may carry the secretions. The eating utensils and toilet articles may do the same thing.

The cold need not start in the nose, although it generally does. Ordinarily the first symptoms are running of the nose and sneezing. But the trouble may begin as a sore throat, or it may take the form of bronchitis. No matter where it begins it will not be long before the whole head and upper part of the chest are involved.

The lining membranes of the nose, throat, mouth and breathing apparatus are continuous. As soon as inflammation begins in one place it gradually extends until all the mucous membranes of the head are involved.

At first there is redness and swelling of the membranes. Then there is increased secretion, first of the watery element and later of the thicker or mucus element. The trouble creeps along, searching out every part of the nose, dipping down into the nasal accessory cavities, extending to the throat, going up the Eustachian tubes to the ear and traveling along into the voice box. Eventually it reaches the bronchial tubes and lungs.

You have learned what a cold really is and how it develops. You know that it is infectious or "catching" and that you must be careful of others or they will suffer. You should take precautions to guard yourself against its dangers.

Winter Dreams—Summer Reality

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

© 1928 by INT'L FEATURE SERVICE, INC. Great Britain rights reserved.

IN WINTER they meet. They dance; they talk; they dine; but most of all they dream. Each waiting and watching and wondering whether or not this is the REAL and the RIGHT one. The dreary Winter days that seem to drag on leaden feet only give one more chance for the dreams that simply will come intruding. Then comes Spring, and everything is bursting into Beauty. And the words are shyer and the glances more tender—like the wee buds that open so slowly to a strange world. And then comes Summer! Glorious in its fulfilment of the promise of Winter and Spring. And then, too, comes Love.

For after the dreams of Winter and the wonderments of the Spring, Summer takes things into her own lovely hands and makes all the dreams come true. Makes realities of silvery, webby strands that one would think would snap at the lightest touch. But they don't, for they are the strongest chains of all—the chains of love that are woven from Winter dreams into Summer realities.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" By Adele Garrison

Madge Promises to Put a Stop to Jerry's Gossip

DICKY reddened at Lillian's raillery and put out a protesting hand as I arose to carry out her suggestion that I interview Jerry Ticer and find out how much publicity he had given to Dicky's sketching of Eleanor Lincoln.

"I don't like to have you do that, Madge," he said with genuine concern in his voice. "It isn't fair to put—"

"We'll consider it all twittered, Dicky-bird," Lillian interrupted. "But don't delay the game. Madge is the only one who can handle the Ticer family, and you know it. By the way, Madge, I saw Mrs. Ticer and Jerry drive past toward their home a little while ago. If you hurry you can catch them there and save yourself a trip to The Larches. And let me add Mother Graham's injunction, 'Don't dawdle!' Dickey and I will be waiting with mouths wide open until you get back."

"I'll hurry," I promised, and departed with a show of alacrity. I was anything but enthusiastic, however, over my errand, and only the remembrance that Dicky really had been genuinely distressed at my going kept me from being bitterly resentful at the part assigned me in this farce—for such the whole affair of Eleanor Lincoln's deception of Philip Veritzen seemed to me.

But, of course, my common sense told me that if the task of silencing Jerry Ticer were to be given to any member of our family, I was the one who logically should receive it. Although Lillian had not mentioned it, we all knew that any admonition of Dicky's to Jerry would be looked upon with the mirthful skepticism as to his real reasons with which a man's request for secrecy concerning some feminine association is generally received.

However, it was with a reluctance in inverse ration to the speed of my car that I drove to the Ticer homestead. But the sight of Mrs. Ticer's friendly, wholesome face smiling above her buxom figure brought reassurance to me.

"Well, well! What a sight for sore eyes!"

This was her greeting, the identical words with which she has met me at every call I have made at her door during the years we have been neighbors.

"No I musn't sit down," I told her as she hospitably urged me inside the house. "I am in great haste and also I must not detain you. But I wanted to ask you—"

I hesitated at a momentary loss for words with which to frame my bizarre request, and in that instant I saw an odd look, half comprehending, half speculative, come into my neighbor's eyes. My errand was not wholly unexpected, I could see that, and the knowledge gave an impetus to my speech.

"Has Jerry spoken to anybody else beside myself about Mr. Graham's sketches of Miss Lincoln?"

Her reply was prompt.

"No, he hasn't, unless somebody else heard him that day at the farm. I'm glad you've come to me about that. You've saved me a trip to the farm. You might as well come in. I want to tell you about Jerry—and ask you about something else."

She stepped back as she spoke and at her compelling gesture and tone I followed her meekly into the low-ceilinged sitting room.

Girls! Your Free Proof Jar of Lady Esther Face Cream Is Ready

Get Your 25-Cent Proof Jar of Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream Free at All Good Drug and Department Stores.

No Greasy Film After Using This Magic Cream—Keeps Face Cool on Hottest Day.

Lady Esther has offered to prove that she can double any woman's beauty and transform her complexion into a vision of loveliness and dainty charm.

Over 20,000 Pittsburgh women took advantage of her generous offer. The result—they will use Lady Esther Face Cream the rest of their lives. Such beautifully clear and smooth skins, and a complexion of which they can well afford to be proud.

Let Lady Esther explain in her own words how she can accomplish such glorious results with her cream.

I always thought it such a pity that women had to spend so much time and money on cleansing and vanishing creams—on skin foods and astringents.

For years I had skin specialists and experts at work, perfecting a cream which would do the work of four creams in one. At last their search was rewarded!

Lady Esther Four-Purpose Face Cream in one operation (takes only 3 minutes), cleanses and nourishes the skin, tightens flabbiness and lays an exquisitely lovely base for powder and rouge.

I have taken women with the ugliest of skins.—After a few applications of my face cream one would hardly believe they were the same women. The texture of their skins was as smooth as the softest velvet—they were actually beautiful. If Lady Esther Four-Purpose Face Cream does this for an ugly skin, you can imagine the ravishingly lovely results obtained by a woman with an ordinary complexion.

All I ask is that you allow me to prove this to you. Do this today!

Go to any good drug or department store in Pittsburgh and you will get a 25-cent proof jar free with a purchase of any regular size jar. Use the proof jar first (lasts 10 days)—then if you don't say it is the most wonderful beautifying cream you ever used, return the regular sized jar and get your money back. Regular sizes 50c and 75c. Economy size $1.25.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, July 20

ALTHOUGH there is augury of excellent prospects in certain directions on this day, judging by lunar and mutual configurations, yet there will be a stubborn obstacle difficult to surmount. This should be vigorously attacked and the splendid prospect for increase, gain and new arrangement grasped, and this will be assisted by a mind alert and strengthened by good judgment and discernment, and steeled by ambition.

Those whose birthday it is are to have a year to test their stability and power to rise above a stubborn obstruction, but their minds will be found spurred to the occasion, with sharp business acument and ambition to rise to the predicted increase, growth and gain of finances and new connections, possibly with large corporations or combines.

A child born on this day should have many excellent qualities for success, prosperity and general advancement, but it may have a stubborn obstacle or handicap to overcome. Its fine mental equipment should assist it.

Obstacles are dumbbells of the soul; there is no defeat but to give up.—IDA PENTECOST.

Nausea

"I have been troubled with indigestion, sour, gassy stomach for 28 years. Since taking ZINSEP I have been greatly benefited. I noticed marked relief after the first two doses, and I recommend it to anyone who has suffered as I have," writes Mr. Chas. Moore, 1415 Edison St., Topeka, Kans. Skyward

We arrived at Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, at 4 p. m., April 29, and found the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile Expedition members well under way in their preparation to receive the great Italian dirigible Norge.

Fate lost no time in placing serious obstacles in our path. The little harbor of Kings Bay was choked with ice, but skillful work by Captain Brennan brought the Chantier to anchor within 900 yards of the shore.

To my dismay I found that there were no facilities for landing my heavy plane. I had counted on the dock at the coaling station. Now we found tied up to this sole landing a small Norwegian gunboat, the Heimdahl, taking coal. Of course I went ashore immediately and asked if we could have the dock for a few hours, at least.

"Sorry, but our ship was nearly lost a few days ago," I was informed. "Drifting ice caught her and carried her helplessly toward the land." I knew the danger from the drifting ice.

Reports indicated that the Norge was on its way north. While I was not actually racing to be the first man to fly across the Pole, I knew the public construed our relative expeditions this way. If I beat Amundsen and Ellsworth at the expense of losing one of the Norwegian gunboats, had I in any way been able to force the Heimdahl to clear the landing, I should be thought guilty of poor sportsmanship, though Amundsen and Ellsworth did not consider themselves racing.

The only thing for us to do was to anchor as close as possible to the shore and send our plane through the drift ice by means of some sort of raft.

By laying heavy planks across the gunwhales of our four whaleboats the crew constructed a big raft. Of course that left the Chantier without boats, which I did not like on account of the dangers from the ice. It began to snow; and the air was cold and raw as all hands worked at top speed to meet the emergency of a landing that was far from safe.

Narrow Escapes

The first mate, de Lucca, a great fellow, hoisted the body of the Josephine Ford from the ship's hold in a swirl of flakes. A change in tide began to close the lane we had opened among the heavy cakes of ice that blocked our course ashore.

We were taking a tremendous chance in doing this, for had a wind sprung up, the pontoon would have been crushed or blown out to sea.

We had plenty of narrow escapes, especially for the plane and equipment.

Just as we finished the raft, the very thing we dreaded happened. The ice started moving with great force and we had quite a struggle saving the raft and even the steamer itself.

A big iceberg came galloping in with the tide. On account of drifting snow we did not see it until it threatened the ship's rudder and we had to rush dynamite to the corner of the oncoming monster and split it into pieces that could be handled or were swept clear by the current.

We had an amusing, though semi-tragic time battling our way shoreward through the ice. Most of the men had never had an oar in their hands before.

My relief was great when we at last reached the ice foot protruding from the beach. Great luck was with us—we must admit that.

The Norwegians gallantly lined up and gave us a ringing cheer.

TOURNEY WINNERS BANQUET GUESTS

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor of The Sun-Telegraph.

AN EVENT that will not be soon forgotten. That was the pleasant thought carried away by the attendants at the dinner marking the presentation of trophies to the winners of The Sun-Telegraph's William Randolph Hearst first annual golf tournament for juniors and sub-juniors in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night.

County Commissioner and former Mayor E. V. Babcock presented the awards to the lads in a fatherly manner and gave them an inspiring talk to boot. Although he had just stepped off a train in the morning after a five days' trip from California and had been busy throughout the day, his mood never was more cheerful and he never touched the hearts of his listeners with a talk that was so full of reminiscence, advice and encouragement as he did in this address.

Among other things, the commissioner dwelled on the advantages of the new county parks and the golf courses and other equipment that are or will be part of them, and he did this with pardonable pride—for the county parks idea, as is so well known, is his brain child. He conceived it, nurtured it and saw it burst forth in full bloom. And perhaps next season, or the season after, he may have the pleasure of seeing part or all of The Sun-Telegraph's annual junior tournament for golfers played over the layouts that he has made possible.

MANY SPEAKERS

Other speakers included John Jay Burke, city manager of the county parks and an executive of the public links section of the U. S. G. A.; Charles W. Danziger, managing editor of The Sun-Telegraph; Al McBride, professional of the Schenley links; Andy Petrolia, caddie master at Schenley; Tom Birks, Carl Shatto, D. E. Benjamin and the writer of The Sun-Telegraph sports staff; Miss E. Lucille Bejach, who assisted in the conduct of the tournament, and the prize winners themselves.

The remarkable success of the tournament, with the largest entry list for a one-day affair in the history of golf in America, was stressed in the talks, along with the fine sportsmanship and gentlemanly qualities displayed by the army of contestants. Burke's talk was especially well received.

Three of the prize-winners were unable to be present and their trophies will be delivered to them at their homes. They were Norman Gaylord, of Erie, the runner-up in the junior division, who could not return to the city again after engaging in a playoff of a tie on Monday; Thomas McDonough, runner-up in the sub-junior class, and Mike Baysura, fourth-place winner among the juniors. All the others were on deck, however.

Joseph Curto, winner of the tournament, made a cleanup in the way of prizes, carting home the William Randolph Hearst handsome bronze trophy of a golfer, a foot and a half high, a solid gold medal and an iron club, all suitably inscribed. Gaylord, the runner-up among the juniors, will receive a gold medal and a club; John Slocum, who finished third after tying for second place, was presented a sterling silver medal and a club, and Baysura and Howard Brubach won sterling silver medals as the fourth place and consolation prizes, respectively, in the junior division.

SLIVIKA REWARDED

Little Steve Slivika, only 14 years old, who shot a 70 to lead the sub-junior class, received a solid gold medal and a club; Thomas McDonough, second, will get a medal and a club; James Scajbarratti, third, was presented a silver medal and a club, and Michael Bakos and Hull Wilson received silver medals as fourth place and consolation prizes. A special prize of a solid gold medal went to Arthur Weltner, who made the only hole in one of the tournament, a 178-yard spoon shot on the twelfth hole.

Others in attendance included William Earl Super and Thomas O'Keefe of the Schenley links.

Vernon A. Swartsfager, golf editor of The Sun-Telegraph, who supervised the successful tournament from start to finish, was master of ceremonies and a corking good one.

And so ends the story of The Sun-Telegraph's first annual tournament for the kids of golfdom in Western Pennsylvania. Next year there will be a bigger and an even better tournament—if such a thing is possible.

CHILLY SAUCE

BY CHILLY DOYLE

THE Waner boys added a specialty to their famous act in the final clash with the Braves. Lloyd and Paul bunted in succession and, when the dust cleared away, there was Sprout over the plate and Paul standing on third. A bunt often will sway a close ball game; yesterday's was anything but doubtful, yet the play in question shows the value of a tap—when it is not expected.

Sprout, perhaps, would be another Willie Keeler if he would do more bunting. One of the fleetest of the fleet he has a sure eye which seems to be one of the prime requisites for "laying down the ball." He pulled his tap yesterday and Brother Paul pushed one to third. Les Bell grabbed the second bunt and tried to get one of the family, but his smart play went awry. Les wanted to nip Lloyd off second when he saw there was no chance to spare Paul. The result was a throw to the outfield and Lloyd made the remainder of the circuit.

BURLEIGH GRIMES appears to be on his way to his best season. Grimes came to the Pirates in the middle of the 1916 campaign, but he was traded to the Dodgers at the close of the 1917 season. He started a colorful career with the Dodgers in 1918 which continued through nine years. Burleigh was able to get as many as 20 victories a season in four separate years. He reached his peak in 1920 when he copped 23 battles for the Dodgers. With the Giants last year he missed the coveted mark by one contest.

With a few breaks, Grimes will get out beyond 23 triumphs this season. He is the type of pitcher that has plenty of drive left when the contestants go down through the October and September stretches.

WALKER CUP TEAM SET

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP.)—The United States Walker Cup team to defend the international golf trophy against Great Britain's best amateurs at the Chicago Golf Club, Wheaton, Ill., the last two days in August, has been completed with the announcement of Maurice McCarthy, Jr., and Eugene Homans, crack young New York golfers, as alternates by the executive committee of the United States Golf Association.

McCarthy, a Georgetown student, is the national intercollegiate golf champion and came near defeating Bobby Jones, the amateur champion, in the first round of the championship at Minikahda last September.

Bobby was one down to McCarthy going to the eleventh hole, but got a half when the youngster took three putts. A 12-foot putt gave the champion of champions a half at the twelfth and at the thirteenth Jones had to sink one of his greatest putts to escape going two down.

Homans, too, was defeated by Jones in the amateur championship, but he led the first qualifying round with 71, the only player in the big field able to break par at the first effort.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE SUN-TELE

Motorists— please make this amazing 10 DAY FREE TEST

ACCEPT, please, this ten day free trial . . . and we'll promise to make your present car ride like new . . Ride like it cost a 1,000 dollars more than it did.

We'll show you an entirely new motoring sensation. Speed with comfort. Comfort over poor roads and bad. Comfort you never knew you could have before.

And all for only $15.00 (fifteen dollars.)

But Don't Pay A Penny For 10 Days

Remember, we don't ask you to believe. We just urge you to give the Indian shock absorbers a trial . . . on your car . . . for ten days . . . at our expense.

Put them to the test. Take them over all kinds of road . . . ruts, "washboard", cobblestones and car tracks.

The results will amaze you.

No bouncing. No tossing. No racking and wrenching of car body. No strain or discomfort.

You just step on the gas and let her go. Smooth. Contented. Relaxed. Thrilled by the ease with which you speed over the bumps.

So, by all means, accept the free trial offer today. You can't lose. You're the judge . . . the only judge. And there is no obligation whatsoever.

If your car is not already equipped with shock absorbers, or if your present shock absorbers are unsatisfactory, straps broken, or other parts out of order, you simply cannot afford to let another day go by without trying Indians.

Here's a wonderful new way to make autos ride smoothly . . a way that ends bouncing and tossing . . . Minimizes squeaks and rattles . . . and prolongs the life of the whole car . . .

For in addition to the greater comfort they give, they cost only $15 a complete set of four . . . less than the price of repairs necessary on many of the older types.

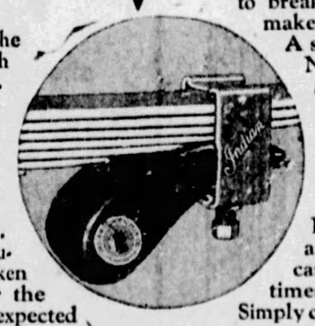
Indians Save Your Car

Indians are based on a radically new and scientific principle. They work both ways . . . in exact proportion to the amount of each shock received. Both the bump and rebound are smoothed down to a minimum.

They also eliminate most of the spring vibration . . the thing that causes springs to weaken and break under the blow of some unexpected bump.

With Indians eliminating the bouncing, tossing, and spring vibration, the motor will last longer. The car body will have fewer squeaks and rattles.

And tires, too. By keeping the tires from skipping and bouncing, premature tread wear is largely eliminated.



Five Year Absolute Guarantee

We absolutely guarantee Indians for five years. There are no straps to break. No adjustments to make. No need for repairs. A set for every make of car. No holes to drill. 20 minutes to install a complete set of four.

Note Offer in Coupon

Just accept our free trial offer and you will see for yourself how Indians will reduce wear and tear on the whole car, and save you many times their low cost.

Simply clip coupon and drive up to any service station displaying the Laughing Indian Sign.

PLUGS CATCHING GAP FOR CORSAIRS

Hargreaves was obtained from the Brooklyn Robins recently in exchange for Catcher Johnny Gooch and First Baseman Joe Harris and has been playing a bang-up game for the Pirates in their return to winning form. He is the first-string catcher, with the departure of Earl Smith, and not only is he making a great job of nursing the crippled pitching staff back into the winning habit, but he also is hitting hard and timely. He was purposely walked three times in two games in the recent series with the Braves.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Dropping of Tilden From United States Davis Cup Squad Probably Kills Yanks' Chances In Challenge Round With France — Bucs Can Go Into Fifth Place by Winning First Two Games of Robin Series—Grimes Ties Benton for League Lead.

A STARTLING page was written into the international tennis annals today when it was announced that Big Bill Tilden had been dropped from the United States Davis Cup team, and this page is likely to be followed by the writing of an unique chapter, a chapter telling how America's racqueters failed to attain the Davis Cup challenge round for the first time in many years.

George Lott, Jr.

Tilden, charged with having professionalized himself by writing newspaper articles on the Wimbledon tournament, an event in which he competed, will take no further part in the Davis Cup dispute. This means that Francis T. Hunter and John Hennessey will be called upon to carry the singles burden against Italy, and Hennessey will pair with George Lott, Jr., the 24-year-old Chicago youth, in the doubles.

THAT Hunter is "over-tennised" and stale was indicated in a previous announcement to the effect that Lott would replace him in the singles against Italy, indicating that Francis was to be saved for the final duels against France. But with Tilden out of the picture, Hunter, stale though he may be, will have to be pressed into service, but even with that action, the chances of a Yankee triumph over the men of Mussolini are encouraging.

Joe Harris.

When America takes the court against Italy in the inter-zone finals at Paris tomorrow, an over-tennised veteran who never achieved any great heights and a youth comparatively untried in Davis Cup fire will be pitted against two veteran campaigners of known ability. Baron Umberto de Morpurgo, the ace of the Italian squad, made an extremely impressive showing at Wimbledon and in previous cup matches, and may win one of his singles engagements.

Hennessey looks good to win both of his singles matches, and the Americans also promise to win the doubles.

With Tilden removed from the picture, worrying about the challenge round with France appears to be not unlike worrying about the crossing of a bridge that never will be reached.

NINE victories in a row and still picking up speed. That's the record of the Pirates following the fourth win over the Braves yesterday which gave the Bushmen a clean sweep against the Bostonese. The Bucs have not tasted defeat since they lost the first game of the series with New York at the beginning of the home stand against the East. They grabbed the next three from the Giants, took the two games played with the Phillies, and then downed the Braves four times in a row, so that only a single game has been lost in the 11 played thus far against the East. Moreover, the climbing Pirates are beginning to get somewhere. By winning yesterday while Brooklyn was losing a double-header, the locals advanced to within a game and a half of the Robins, and if they win the first two games of the series here with Uncle Robbie's gang, they will take possession of sixth place with a percentage of .518 to a mark of .512 for the Dodgers. Seven straight games are to be played with the Robins, four here and three in Brooklyn.

FORBES FIELD patrons will see some old acquaintances in action during the series against Brooklyn.

Joe Harris, former Pirate, was sent into the Robin lineup as a regular for the first time on Tuesday, in an endeavor to strengthen the attack, and will hold down an outfield berth during the Dodgers' games here.

In addition, Max Carey, another ex-Buccaneer, is playing regularly in the Brooklyn outfield, and besides there are such other old Pittsburgh performers on the Robin roster as Catcher Johnny Gooch, and Pitchers Dazzy Vance and Louis Koupal.

Tex Rickard.

BURLEIGH GRIMES keeps up his great work and gives every promise of making a strong bid for the distinction of winning more games than any other pitcher in the National League, if not in both leagues this year.

Grimes hung up his fifteenth victory of 1928 yesterday and went into a tie with Larry Benton for the leadership in games won in the National. The only man in either league with a higher total is George Pipgras of the Yankees who has captured 16 games.

GENE TUNNEY may not change his boxing style for the big title bout with Tom Heeney one week from tonight, but he is trying to alter his personality—for gate purposes. Reports from Gene's training camp say that visitors are surprised at the change in Tunney. He has doffed the high hat and has become a handshaker around election time. Instead of remaining cold and aloof, he has suddenly been transformed into a rousing, hail-fellow-well-met specimen. The cause and the reason? Well, it is a pretty good guess that the fine Italian hand of Tex Rickard is behind it all. Tunney lacked color, and was failing to make friends or followers, so Rickard probably set about to turn him into a "good fellow" for the size of the box office.

Johnny Gooch.

DONIE BUSH was grieved after yesterday's game to learn that one of of his old team-mates in Detroit, Pitcher Edward Killian had died after an illness of several months at the age of 51. "Ed was a fine fellow and one of the most popular men on our team," said the Pirate leader.

Killian pitched for the Tigers from 1905 to 1910, inclusive, but did not break into any of the world series games between the Pirates and Bengals in 1909.

PITCHER ERVIN BRAME of the Bucs will be out of commission for a longer period than was originally expected.

The infection on his right thumb threatened to develop into blood poisoning, and though the club doctor has succeeded in checking it he says Brame will be unable to pitch for at least another week.

TILDEN BARRED FROM DAVIS CUP TEAM

France Not Objector

France, defender of the Davis Cup, did not protest against Tilden's writings—which the United States Association contended were in violation of the amateur ruling.

President Collom issued the following statement to the press:

"The amateur rules committee and the Davis Cup committee having preferred charges against William Tilden, II, for having violated amateur rules by writing current newspaper articles for pay or consideration covering the Wimbledon tournament, in which he was a competitor; and, whereas, it would be improper to retain as a member of the United States Davis Cup team any player against whom any such charges are pending, the United States Davis Cup Committee withdraws Tilden from the competition."

Collum's announcement came after a night of deliberation and a conference this morning with Tilden and other players. Sounds of heated argument emanating from

THE dramatic advance of the Buccaneers continues. The appearance today of the Dodgers has failed to cause any terror or panic in the camp of the Oaklanders, the home boys sharing an opinion that they will be able to extend their winning drive at the expense of the Flatbush boys.

Uncle Robbie led his team into Pittsburgh this morning from Cincinnati, where yesterday the Dodgers sustained a double defeat in a stop-

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

NOT long ago, Jimmy McLarnin boxed Sammy Mandell for the lightweight championship and was generally conceded a good chance of winning. But he fizzled before the superior boxing of the titleholder and finished far in the rear. Never once did he get a chance to send over his haymaking wallop.

After the bout, Mandell explained his handy triumph by saying McLarnin was easy to beat and always would be easy for a good boxer.

"He has no change of pace," was Sammy's sum-up of his opponent.

THE average sports fan is not familiar with the meaning of a change of pace in boxing, although he knows what it means when applied to a pitcher in baseball. A good pitcher must have it to get by. He must be able to mix up his fast one and curves with a slow one and keep the batter guessing as to what is coming next. If he delivers the ball at the same rate of speed every time, the batter gets a chance to set himself and then it is just too bad for the pitcher.

Now, what is meant by a change of pace in boxing is the ability of a boxer to coast along, go at half speed and open up the throttle wide, along with a variety of fighting styles. A boxer who has IT, the "it" in this case meaning the change of pace, can adapt his methods to the type of opponent he is facing. He can become a boxer or a fighter at will, or start out with a set style and change it if it does not get results. In other words, he does not carry all of his fistic eggs in one basket. He is versatile to a fault.

McLARNIN is a strong young fellow with a sock, who shows at his best against a foe who will mix with him and give him a chance to get over that big wallop. He figured to be lost against Mandell, although the majority of fans and critics would not believe this until it happened. He came back by knocking out a slugger, Paul McGraw, and here the dope would out again, for McGraw is the t... to present many openings fo... finishing punch.

PUBLIC LINKS TEAMS, ALL-STARS CLASH

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

PITTSBURGH'S annual all-star, public links team match will be contested today over the Schenley Park course. The match will be an 18-hole affair, with each team composed of 14 players. The first foursome will tee off at 3 p. m. The pairings follow:

Richard C. Long, Stanton Heights, and Robert Graham; William C. Fownes, Jr., Oakmont, and M. Galdo.

Allison R. Maxwell, Oakmont, and M. H. Boschert; Raymond L. Babcock, Oakmont, and Bernie McFarland.

Joseph I. Crawford, Oakmont, and Carl F. Kauffmann; Grear McIlvain, Oakmont, and C. J. Lunden.

George A. Ormiston, Oakmont, and W. J. Platt; J. Scott Burke, Fox Chapel, and S. Walter Phillips.

Henry C. Fownes, II, Oakmont, and Sam Graham; James T. Lappan, Pittsburgh Field Club and Joe Curto.

Fred B. Weppner, Stanton Heights and Francis Lally; John Graham, South Hills, and T. M. Barr.

James A. Fownes, Oakmont, and J. M. Slater; J. Bernd Rose, Allegheny, and Thomas Dunn.

BRAND MEDALIST

Fred Brand, Jr., shooting a fine 153, led the qualifying field in the annual Western Pennsylvania junior golf championship over the Shannopin course yesterday, finishing with medalist honors five strokes to the good over his nearest rival, George Orcutt of the Corry Country Club. Brand is the defending champion.

The Sewickley Y. M. C. A.-Hanastown Country Club star shot his first round in 77 and then came back to score a 76 on his second. Orcutt, who took the lead in the morning with a 75 faltered somewhat in the afternoon and finished up with an 82, which gave him a total of 153.

Denny St. Clair of Kiski was six strokes behind Orcutt with a 164.

Golfers' Wives Barred; Strike Threatened

WESTFIELD, N. J., July 19.—(AP.)—More than 40 professional golfers competing here in the Metropolitan open golf championship threatened to withdraw from the tournament today unless the wives of competitors were permitted access to the club house.

The players complain that their wives and daughters had to pay to gain admission. A petition of protest, on which were the names of several former national champions and many other noted players, was presented to officials in charge of the tournament.

TUNNEY SEES FRIENDS CRASH IN PLANE

Brooklyn's the Only Place Where They Consider Robins Game Birds

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

BEATS EXPRESS

COLOGNE, Germany, July 19. — (AP.) — Fritz Von Opel, German sportsman, beat an express train with his 560 H. P. motor boat in a 10-kilometer race on the Rhine.

Jim Corbett Visits Camp

By GENE TUNNEY,
Heavyweight Champion of the World.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 19.—"Just another crash and good for the business," remarked Bernard Gimbel as Sam Fryor sat on a straw hat in the automobile that was to take them to the train following their aerial mishap here yesterday afternoon. Flying here from New York in time to witness what was perhaps the best workout of my training period for the match with Heeney, the group of enthusiastic airmen and boxing fans—Jim Bush, Charley Bob, Sam Pryor and Bernard Gimbel set off from the local golf course with Bill Winston at the stick.

GENE TUNNEY

It was the remarkable courage and expert handling of the plane that saved all from what might have been a tragic crash when the motor failed to gain speed and the machine struck a tree-top, causing it to crash to the ground.

In spite of the excitement caused by the crash, the first words of Charley Bob were about my own plans for making the journey to the Yankee Stadium next week by air. I assured him that I would travel by plane.

CORBETT VISITS CAMP

Jim Corbett visited the camp to watch the day's drill. He reminisced with Johnny Dundee, recalling the theater in New York where he picked out a skinny kid to watch his car. The kid had to fight to keep from splitting the tip with the gang. That fight started Johnny Dundee on his career in the ring.

Several times I have been asked whether Heeney's rushing tactics, his great strength and aggressiveness will make it more difficult for me to defend the heavyweight championship successfully next Thursday night in view of the fact that I have not fought since last fall.

The long layoff without an actual ring battle is set up as one great reason why my punching equipment should be rusty, that my best shots should fly off line, allowing Heeney to plow through my guard and get to close quarters, where he snows to best advantage.

I do not think so. In the first place, my physical condition is better today than it ever has been for any other major contest. I am heavier and stronger, thoroughly trained for 15 rounds of the most strenuous milling. And mentally I am tuned for battle.

But, better than all these, I have worked day after day against my sparring partners, Billy Vidabeck and Harold Mays, practicing nothing more than the shooting of punches into a certain spot on those fast-moving targets. At first, naturally, my judgment of distance was off and the workouts were far from satisfactory. Now things are different.

I find that today I am able to punch as sharply and accurately as at any time in my career. The layoff that was forced upon me has taken nothing from my accuracy. My bodily condition is better than it ever has been before. Is there any reason, therefore, why I should not be able to handle every asset Heeney has without fear of defeat?

PRYOR EX-PITTSBURGHER

Sam Pryor, friend of Gene Tunney, who figured in the airplane crash at Speculator yesterday, is a former Pittsburgher. He is a son-in-law of Taylor Allderdice and made his home here until about a year ago.

SOUDERS IMPROVED

the conference room gave the first intimation that there was civil war in the American camp. Tilden stamped out of the conference angrily, and Collum, pale and nervous, emerged to announce his decision.

DEFENDS ARTICLES

Tilden said, when the announcement had been made:

"I deny that the articles written for the London Evening Standard were a contemporaneous reports of the tournament in which I was a competitor. I consider this a deliberate misinterpretation of my articles and an attempt to embarrass President Samuel H. Collum, of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, and Poseph W. Wear, chairman of the United States Davis Cup Committee. Two of three of the disputed articles were published prior to the departure from the United States of Collum and Wear. One was fully discussed at a committee meeting at which Collum and Wear were present. No objection was raised by any person present.

"It seems very strange that the same article was so much worse after Wear and Collum were two days at sea. Once more the gentlemen in the United States are interpreting my motives and once more incorrectly. I deeply regret the embarrassment to Collum and Wear, as well as to the team, but I am glad to say that all feel there was no intention on my part to evade or violate the rules. I have offered my services to the team for practice work until the challenge round."

past tense is used on the theory that he is definitely out of the ring) a change-of-pace fighter. He was a slugger pure and simple, and when he was outsmarted by good boxers he didn't look so hot. Tommy Gibbons baffled him for 15 rounds, and Tunney gave him the works in both of their bouts.

ALL of this introductory matter leads up to a discussion of the forthcoming meeting between Tunney and Tom Heeney at the Yankee Stadium, New York, one week from tonight. Tunney is a change-of-pace boxer and Heeney doesn't know what a change of pace is. Neither has Heeney a knockout punch with which to make up for the lack of varied methods of attack. Heeney figures to start off by walking after Tunney in his plodding way and to continue doing the same thing in just the same way right down to the finish. Once Tunney gets a line on his gait, the rest will be easy. He will know every move of the challenger after a round or two of fighting and should be able to proceed about his own business of winning with nothing to worry about in the nature of a surprise attack.

In other words, he will be in the same relative position as Mandell against McLarnin.

LEWIS MUST GIVE LONDOS TITLE SHOT

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Athletic Commission has announced that Ed "Strangler" Lewis, heavyweight wrestling champion, must accept the challenge of Jim Londos, of Philadelphia, within 30 days or forfeit his title in Pennsylvania. The location of the match was unrestricted.

over shindig with the Reds. Up to their arrival in Rhineland, the Robins were making all sorts of trouble for the Western teams, but the Hendricks' nine appears to have slowed them down somewhat.

The Pirates, nevertheless, are taking nothing for granted. Manager Bush stated this morning that Fred Fussell, impressive lefthander, would face the Dodgers in the opener. Doug McWeeny, Coast righthander, is likely to oppose the Oaklanders.

GOOCH, HARRIS HERE

The impending series will be enlivened by the appearance in enemy regalia of Johnny Gooch, Joe Harris and Max Carey. The sorrel-top receiver has done a lot of good receiving for Uncle Robbie since he joined his club, and Coulter Joe, in the emergency role, has delivered frequently. Scoops Carey, leading off for the Dodgers, has been a big factor in the recent exploits of the club. A doubleheader will be staged on Saturday and after these games are completed the two teams will hustle to Brooklyn, where they will play another dual affair on Sunday.

The Pirates record their ninth straight victory yesterday as spectacular features abounded. Bush's batters rang up a total of 21 safeties at the expense of three enemy hurlers, while Burleigh Grimes won his fifteenth victory of a banner season.

The Oaklanders jumped off to a three-run lead in the first round and ere they were retired in the second they had amassed five tallies. The Braves struck back with two in the third and indicated they might be able to make it a tough battle, but as the fight progressed the home boys showed remarkable powers, they piling up tallies in each succeeding round except the third and sixth.

P. WANER, HARGREAVES HURT

Two star members of the Buccaneer band were felled by the force of the balls during the battle, but fortunately, neither was hurt bad enough to retire from action. Paul Waner was hit on the shoulder by one of Eddie Brandt's fast pitches. Paul had to take time out to receive first-aid treatment, but he recovered in a fine manner.

Catcher Charles Hargreaves almost took a count when a foul tip struck him in the collar bone. Charlie also was turned over to the club physician for quick treatment, but, like Brother Paul, he was able to resume. Both players were taken out after the Buccos had amassed what seemed to be a safe lead. Clyde Barnhart went to rightfield and Rolly Hemsley went under the bat. The injured players are expected to be at their stations this afternoon in the first clash with the Dodgers.

FIGHT RESULTS

At New York—Tod Morgan defeated Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, 15 rounds, for junior lightweight championship; Andy DiVodi won on a foul from Harry Wallach, one round; Dominick Petrone defeated Rube Goldberg, 8 rounds; Ernie Rossie won by a technical knockout over Joe Corbett, 1 round.

At Montreal—Leo (Kid) Roy and Vic Foley drew, 10 rounds.

At Dayton, Ky.—Jack Duffy defeated Tommy Crowley, 10 rounds; Sidney Glick defeated Buddy Lee, 6 rounds; Paul Dare knocked out Al Merrill, 2 rounds; Billy Kane defeated Clyde Johns, 4 rounds.

At San Francisco—Ritchie Mack defeated Battling Bolo, 8 rounds.

The big opportunity of the season to trade in your old or new equipment tires at full value and get top quality DUAL TREAD, PROPER SIZE Generals.

Tire Prices Now Lowest in History of the Industry

It's the SECOND Year that Makes the Big Hit

Not only the second 10,000 miles, but the uninterrupted service that carries through to the last mile.

The kind of protection you get only when it is built into the tire—protection that cannot be duplicated by any other line.

Not the protection that dodges the question of natural wear and insures against accidents by promising free repairs.

Not the sort of protection that you collect on only by having trouble—But the "top quality" protection that means avoidance of delay, of dirt, of soiled and sometimes spoiled clothing, of ruined tubes through going flat. These are the real protections that car owners want today.

Freedom from trouble and longest uninterrupted tire wear — two to one.

Take advantage of this trade-in sale and enjoy your vacation without fear or expense of tire trouble

Is Commodity Price Trend To Be Upward or Downward?

—By B. C. FORBES—

WHAT is the price outlook for farm products and manufacturers?

So far this year price movements have favored growers rather than consumers. Agricultural prices today stand substantially higher than they did at the opening of the year whereas other prices have hardly held their own.

It would appear doubtful that farm prices, as a whole, will rise much further during the balance of the year—Unless, of course, there should occur some wholly unforseen disaster to crops.

The industrial price level probably will change little. A slight recession, due to competition, is more likely than an advance.

The trend in rents, in view of the record-breaking volume of building, and in view of indications at various points that the supply has overtaken the demand, should be in a moderately downward direction.

The net of it all is that the cost of living in this country promises to ease slightly.

On the other hand, attempts to reduce wages meets with stubborn resistance, as we are witnessing at the New Bedford cotton mills. The wage level throughout the nation promises to be firmly maintained.

SINCE early January all cereals have enjoyed an advance. Wheat prices have now dipped below those of a year ago. July deliveries then were quoted around $1.40 against approximately $1.30 now. July corn was several cents below a dollar a year ago, compared with $1.05 now at Chicago. Oats bring nearly 10 per cent more than a year ago and rye makes a similar showing.

Beef commands some 40 per cent above a year ago. Indeed, prices have been so high that attempts have been made here and there to discourage its consumption. Meanwhile, stock raisers have been enjoying a measure of prosperity denied them for years. Pork has held unusually steady all through the year. Eggs and butter both bring more remunerative prices than they did 12 months ago. So do hides.

Cotton, too, is comfortably above last July's figures.

A RECENT compilation by the Department of Labor showed that farm products has risen an average of 14 per cent in the previous 12 months, contrasted with an advance of only 2½ per cent in non-agricultural products. It also brought out that in the last two years farm prices have fared distinctly better than prices for other commodities. There was a prolonged period when agricultural prices were far out of line with manufactured goods, but that period ended some little time ago.

IRON prices have been dragging and are now about $2.50 a ton below a year ago. Steel products have held up better, but still are low. Copper has been the best performer; it now stands two cents a pound above a year ago. Tin, which sold very high, has had a severe drop.

Although crude oil has been marked up from last year's extremely low level, gasoline at most points costs less now than it did last July.

Price reductions by automobile manufacturers have lately figured prominently in the newspapers, although not all manufacturers by any means have acted. Ford found it necessary to mark up one or two of his models. The competition from the biggest corporations is such that smaller makers have felt compelled to lower prices to keep their plants busy.

Rubber prices are little more than half what they were a year ago, but it remains to be seen how long they will remain under 20 cents a pound.

Manufacturers of house furnishings, notwithstanding active building, have been cutting prices. Competition has become especially keen in the rug and carpet industry.

IN BRITAIN prices are moderately under a year ago. June brought a slight decline in France after eight months of an upward trend. German prices, like our own, have fluctuated very little. In Italy there has been a modest rise since the beginning of the year. The return to the gold basis naturally has stabilized prices in Europe.

IN THIS country hand-to-mouth buying has tended to prevent the violent swings in prices formerly too common. The very large number of failures among small business concerns reveals, however, that it has become more difficult than ever before for weak concerns to hold out against the more powerful competitors.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP.)—The raw sugar market was unsettled today. Although no sales were confirmed, it seemed to be the impression in trade circles that some duty free sugars were sold yesterday at 4.11c delivered, a decline of 1-32c. There appeared to be additional offerings at the same level today, with buyers showing no interest.

Raw sugar futures were irregular, with trading less active. The market opened 2 points lower to 1 point higher under a renewal of near month liquidation. New crop positions were relatively steady on covering and some trade and outside buying. Subsequently the whole market firmed up with prices at one time unchanged to 2 points above the previous close. Offerings increased on the bulge and reactions left the market at midday unchanged 3 to 5 points net lower.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.75c to 5.80c for fine granulated.

STOCK MARKET PRICES RIDE SEE-SAW

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP.)—Resumption of the upward movement of prices in today's stock market encountered stiffer selling resistance. Prices started forward at the opening, fell back when heavy selling developed in some of the high priced specialties and then moved upward again in response to a lowering of call money rates. Trading continued relatively light in volume.

Call money renewed at 5½ per cent, but the amount available at that figure reached such large proportions that the rate was later cut to 5. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm, but a slight advance was made in the rates on bankers' acceptances. Some banking quarters regard the present call money rates as temporary, and look for a return of 6 per cent and higher rates before the end of the month.

Except for the publication of several favorable earnings reports, and the official intimation that a merger of the Victor Talking Machine Company and the Radio Corporation was still a possibility, there was little in the day's news to influence the price movement.

Mercantile and mail order issues again showed group strength, McCrory common and the B stock selling at the year's highs while Montgomery-Ward was pushed up 3 points. Steel shares also advanced 1 to nearly 3 points on buying influenced by the high rate of July mill operations and the advance in steel prices for fourth quarter delivery. Midland steel products preferred and National Tea each jumped 5½ points.

Indian Refining preferred and Case Threshing each broke 7 points, and R. H. Macy, Peoples Gas and Willys Overland fell back 1 to 2 points.

LOCAL MARKET CONTINUES DULL AND NARROW

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

IS THERE danger of exhausting our oil deposits? What shall we do for gasoline if the notoriously wasteful methods of obtaining crude oil deplete the world's natural resources? These are questions frequently asked today.

The immediate difficulty of the oil industry is one of overproduction, but this is only a temporary situation. On the long-range outlook for supplies of crude oil there is a wide divergence of opinion among experts.

No one actually knows how much oil is in the ground. But engineers do know that there is no cause for worry about our gasoline supply. If all the oil wells should start flowing salt water within a year and no new discoveries should be made, there are known ways of meeting the situation.

WELLS only take a part of the oil from the porous oil-bearing sands. The mining of this shale and the extraction of the oil by mechanical means has been proved feasible from an engineering standpoint. In some parts of the world this is actually being done.

If the world is ever faced with a serious oil shortage, the prices of petroleum products will advance to a point which will make the widespread mining of oil shale commercially feasible.

COAL offers another means of obtaining gasoline and other oil derivatives. By-product coke ovens are already yielding small quantities of benzol, which is mixed with gasoline to make anti-knock motor fuels. Processes have been discovered which can literally turn coal into oil.

THE international conference on bituminous coal held here by the Carnegie Institute of Technology in November, 1926, was instrumental in first making these processes generally known in this country. A second conference is to be held this fall, and similar important discoveries may be explained by savants from the world over.

ONE scientist, Dr. Friederich Bergius, of Heidelberg, Germany, read a paper at the last conference on a process perfected by him which has proved a commercial success in Germany. The American rights to the process were bought by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey a year ago, and a plant is now being built at New Brunswick, N. J.

THE process uses as its raw material practically any grade of lignite or bituminous coal. The crushed coal is mixed with a heavy oil, the residue of previous operations. Hydrogen is forced into the apparatus under tremendous pressure, and the mixture is heated at temperatures ranging from 400 to 500 degrees centigrade. The ratio of carbon to hydrogen in coal is 16 to 1, while in oil it is 8 to 1. The process increases the proportion of hydrogen. From 50 to 60 per cent of the coal is transformed to oil. One ton of coal will yield 104 gallons of oil, from which 45 gallons of gasoline can be obtained.

THE process can be most economically used in connection with a gas plant. The hydrogen produced from the gas plant can be used in Dr. Bergius' method. The gas produced in transforming the coal can then be added to the ordinary gas output of the plant.

"The plant can be looked upon as an ordinary gas plant for the simple reason that the gas produced has the same calorific value, while our by-product oil is worth considerably more than the coke of an ordinary gas plant," said Dr. Bergius at the conference here.

At present it is unlikely that this process will be widely used in this country, due to the low prices of crude oil. But in the future, if oil values advance, which is quite probable, the Bergius process and other similar developments may contribute greatly to our supplies of gasoline.

IN EUROPE, where crude oil is not as plentiful as in this country, more attention has been paid to the extraction of oil from coal. The practice promises to show a more immediate development.

Dr. Bergius is not, by any means, the only scientist in Europe who has made remarkable discoveries in this field. Gen. Georges Patart, of France, has carried on similar experiments, but his results have been chiefly in the field of making alcohols from coal.

DR. BERGIUS spent several millions of dollars on his research station before he perfected his system. In 1925 two big factors were started to make use of his inventions. One is in the lignite territory and the other in the Ruhr territory in Germany.

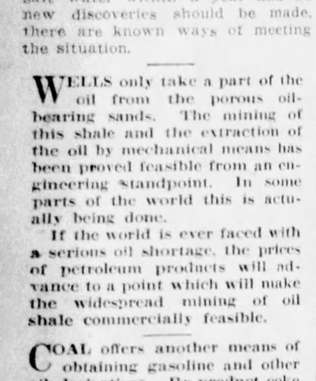
HE FEELS BETTER IN EVERY WAY!

Local Man Claims Ten Herbs Benefited Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels.

"Ten Herbs has given me new strength and ambition and made me feel better in every way," was the statement of Mr. Nicholas Walsh, 1128 Greenfield Avenue, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine.



MR. NICHOLAS WALSH

"I had indigestion very badly for about 9 years," continued Mr. Walsh, who is 67 years old, and was employed by the United States Steel Co. for 20 years, but was put on the pension list about 9 years ago. "Food would ferment and fill me with gas, which troubled my heart. I became constipated and got so bad that I had to keep taking physics. I would become so dizzy that I would have to hold to something to keep from falling. My nerves became affected, and if I got two hours' sleep at night I was fortunate. My kidneys caused pains in my back and compelled me to arise often at night. I thought my age was telling on me, and I tried different medicines, but never obtained satisfactory results.

"Now, after taking Ten Herbs, I can honestly say that I feel more like myself than I have in the last 9 years. My bowels are regular—no need for physics. My appetite is normal. Food does not ferment and form gas, and my heart never bothers me any more. My liver and kidneys are working fine. Dizzy spells and pains in my back are gone. I do not arise so often at night. My nerves are more quiet, and my sleep is sound. Your medicine seems to have given my whole system a thorough cleansing and improved my blood circulation. Ten Herbs has made such a great change in me that I do not hesitate to recommend your medicine to the public."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ordinance, Bill No. 2146, has been introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh July 16, 1928, amending an ordinance entitled:

"An Ordinance regulating and restricting the location of trades and industries and the location of buildings designed for specified uses and regulating and limiting the height and bulk of buildings hereafter erected or altered, and regulating and determining the area of yards, courts and other open spaces in connection with buildings hereafter erected or altered, and establishing the boundaries of districts for the said purposes; conferring certain powers upon the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection; providing for a Board of Appeals; and imposing penalties," approved August 8, 1923, by changing the Zone Map, Sheet Z—N16—E20, so as to change from a "B" Residence Use District to a "C" Residence Use District, all that certain property bounded by South Lexington street, Reynolds street, the westerly line of Le Roi road for a distance of 56.11 feet north of the north line of Reynolds street, a line running 100 feet southwardly from the southerly line of Card Lane, Grace Lane and a line parallel with and 150 feet southwardly from the southerly line of Penn avenue as now opened.

And that a public hearing will be held by the Council of the City of Pittsburgh to consider said ordinance in the Council Chamber, Fifth floor, City-County Building, Pittsburgh, Pa., at 2:00 P. M., on Wednesday, August 8th, 1928.

ROBT. CLARK,
City Clerk.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl -:- Story by Lloyd Mayer -:- By John Held, Jr.

NOW TAKE ME FOR INSTANCE, I DON'T BELIEVE IN DOING ANYTHING, UNLESS YOU DO IT WELL, NOW ME I ALWAYS STAY WITH IT, I DO!
TAKE SOME OF THE OTHER FELLOWS, NEXT YEAR THEY ARE SOPHS- AND NEXT THEY'RE JUNIORS AND AGAIN THEY'RE SENIORS, NEVER KNOW WHERE THEY ARE!
BUT YOU! YOU'RE ALWAYS A FRESHMAN!
YEA!
STICK TO IT! THAT'S MY MOTTO!
7-19

"My dear, I'm ALL-of-a-DITHer, no less—I mean I'm ACtually UNdulating with ENnui at this point because I sat HEAVily on the BEACH all MORNing listening to that CUDdiepuppy ARab raving about how he b'lieved in DOing things WELL and sticking WITH them and all, which is his exCUSE, my dear, for repEATing his FRESHman YEAR again—can you BEAR it, my dear? REALly, it was SIMply NAUseous listening to him, my dear, because he said these fellows who got proMOted never knew WHERE they were because next year they'd be SOPHS and then JUNIors and then SENiors, so I said with BITing SCORN, my dear, 'But YOU'RE always a FRESHman!' AND would you B'LIEVE it, my dear, he wasn't the LEAST bit het UP by my scornful incinerAtion but just comPLAcently said YES, he b'lieved in sticking TO it! GOSH, my dear, I'm SIMply LIVid about the situation because it SIMply means if I EVer let him TAKE me places next year it'll be TERribly emBARrassing having him a FRESHman again because I mean we're getting ON, you know, my dear, and I simply KNOW I'll be too OLD or something to get a THRILL out of going round with just a FRESHman, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

"Why is a wife just like a brand
New car? asked Neighbor Pike;
"I do not know," is my reply,
"Why are they both alike?"
"Because it's not the purchase price
That smacks of pain and gall,
But cost of daily maintenance
That drives us to the wall;"
Said I, "Perhaps, in general,
Your answer's not amiss;
But yet it's not infallible,
How do you figure this:
I give my car two gallons,
She'll go forty on the hop;
But if I give my wife a quart,
She don't know when to stop."

Strange thoughts, indeed, were creeping through Sir Harry's mind.

SYNOPSIS—Sir Harry Doncaster, having found a lady's glove at the Dragoons' Ball, accidentally comes upon an item in the Southern Reporter and Devil's Gate Express urging the gent who found lady's glove at Dragoons' Ball to be at Zoological Gardens in London on Sunday at half after two.

SIR HARRY stopped in the street as though frozen—for he had reached to his kerchief pocket to see whether the lady's glove he had picked up at the Dragoons' Ball was still safely deposited in his kerchief pocket. The glove was gone!

"Fining Squire" A Pest Who Should Be Shown Up

The Pittsburgh Motor Club announces a campaign against "fining squires" and urges all motorists who have been unjustly arrested to waive hearing, putting their cases up to the Court of Quarter Sessions. "Then come to see us," C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, advises.

The "fining squire" is a pest to motorists in many parts of Pennsylvania and this individual is not peculiar to Allegheny county alone, although to remedy the cause of many complaints in this county is the purpose behind the present movement. The fining squire is an individual who is unduly active in motor law enforcement in order to collect his own fee. Even motorists who know they are being "soaked" permit themselves to be victims of outrageous procedure because they think the cheapest way out of trouble is the easiest way. They pay whatever is exacted in the holdup and proceed on their way as quickly as possible.

Mr. Roth's "then come to see us" seems to offer encouragement for protest by any motorist unjustly arrested. It indicates that he will have the backing of a reputable organization. It is to be hoped that motorists will have the backbone to stand up for their rights and not let these "fining squires" continue to impose upon them. They have practiced their petty graft because they knew most car drivers would rather submit than go to the trouble to show them up to the public.

The Death of Obregon

Assassination Defeats Its Own Purposes.

The world reads with horror of the assassination of Obregon, recently elected to succeed Calles as President of the Mexican Republic.

The Mexican President-elect, a one armed man, sat defenseless at dinner, when six bullets struck him down.

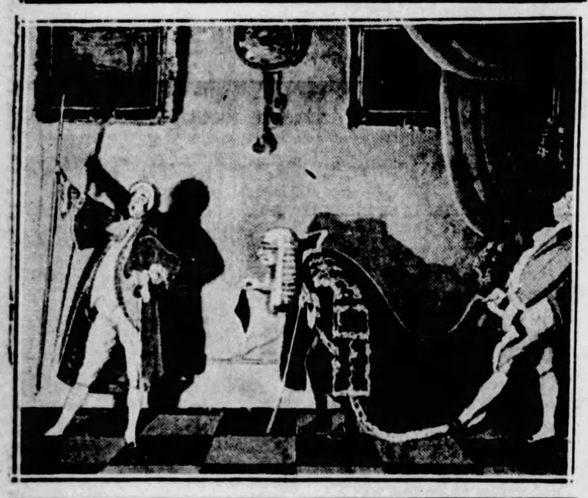
Cold and cowardly, the assassin, with his bullets, defeated his own object, whatever it may have been.

The murder will intensify Mexican adherence to the policies of Obregon and his associates. If there are wrongs to be righted, the assassination will have made the public deaf to any appeal.

This country, like the rest of the world, will sympathize with Mexico, doubly bereaved, by the death of the brave Carranza and again by this cowardly blow of murder.

The Black Cap

A Great Artist Paints a Cartoon.



THE JUDGE HOLDS THE CAP ON HIS WAY TO DEAL OUT DEATH.

Sir William Orpen, a great artist, intelligently applies his talent, sometimes, painting cartoons instead of painting individuals or landscapes.

In this picture, which has created a sensation, Sir William shows a British judge, in wig and gown, one servant holding up his train and another bewigged servant leading, passing to the bench TO DEAL OUT DEATH.

The judge himself, as you see, totters on the edge of the grave.

And will soon go to join the condemned criminal in that strange abode beyond the grave.

Admirably painted are the feebleness of justice that with a word will strangle a fellow human being to death, the pomp and self-importance of the servants, one crying out "Make way," the other holding the chain of justice. What a splendid comment on man's glory and civilization. What a satire on the brutality of capital punishment.

More artists of ability should devote their genius to pictures satirizing the folly, weakness and brutality of mankind.

Hogarth did it, other great painters have done it; but not many. The majority are content to paint things that they see, human faces or landscapes.

If they would paint humanity, bring human beings face to face with their own weaknesses, as Charles Dickens did in his savage attacks on cruelty to children and on the debtors' prison, the artists would be more useful. And many that now struggle for a thin living might prosper.

Many a rich man would pay a good price for a picture like this, with A REAL MEANING. Especially if the meaning happened to suit him. It might NOT suit him, if it told too much truth.

HE SEEMS TO BE IN A BATTING SLUMP

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, July 19.—New York is slowly becoming slumless. Great block-long chunks have been taken out of the teeming East Side tenement district to make way for livable apartment house quarters at reasonable rental. A great change comes to what O. Henry called the submerged tenth.

While the greatest of economic problems has not been solved, the progress in the past 10 years has been startling. Uptown New York with accustomed smugness scarcely realizes the insecurity and uncertainty, which have been the heritage of the poor, have almost vanished.

The people of the East Side no longer sit about in a state of inarticulate futility. There is a wave of briskness and energy. Where once stood the dingy shop, there is now the magnificence of a plate glass window display.

Even the abiding smell of the East Side has changed. Once it had a stuffy mustiness like the dry sad odor of an old prison. It assailed the nostrils with a feeling of depression. Today there is the fragrance of cleanliness, of streets washed clean and floors scrubbed white.

There are very few flats not equipped with a bath. There is a constant succession of potted plants on the window ledges, and that squalor which used to hide in the alleys and byways is gone. There is a bloom to the cheeks of the children.

I can remember when East Side children would slink away to shadowy doorways when a stranger passed. It was a striking illustration of class and its consciousness. Now they romp on the sidewalk with abandon and arrogance. There are few tattered gamins in rags.

The sweatshop, too, with wan figures toiling over sewing machines in a grumpy light was once one of the depressing sights for the slummer. With few exceptions, they are now well lighted and airy lofts. The workers are well dressed and to all appearances happy.

He is one of the most adroit of the American comedians. He has poise, diction, an excellent singing voice, a marvelous sense of both high and low comedy, a handsome face, magnificent physique and (I'm not thinking of marrying him) lots of that indefinable quality known as personality. Also he has the most expressive hands of anyone on the speaking stage. Yet he has never clicked in a great big way. He gets across the footlights the feeling he is entirely content. And nothing is so disturbing to an audience as an actor satisfied with himself. Incidentally, the comedian's name is Frank Fay.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

What Is Knowledge?

IT IS but a few years ago that we began to read among the publication lists such titles as "The New Astronomy," "The New Chemistry," etc., culminating in the generalized title "The New Knowledge." Of course, there were justifying reasons for the use of such titles. The books bearing them generally presented a great deal of new matter, the result of recent discovery and research, and occasionally they included truly revolutionary advances. They showed how in 10 years or less more new effects and new principles had been discovered and new methods invented than in all the preceding history of the science. That was their real message.

The only mistake was in assuming, by inference, if not by affirmation, that the new knowledge was of a new kind, and was final knowledge. In any case, the general reader was very apt, from the air of the book, to catch the impression that what he was reading described the finishing stroke. The hole had been made and there would be no going back of that, and no swerving from the line indicated.

But science never pauses and seldom lets any of its theories stand unaltered, even when they have come to be regarded as something permanent and not mere working hypotheses. This is shown by the fact that now we are beginning to read announcements of books on "the newer knowledge."

The "old" knowledge, the "new" knowledge; the "newer" knowledge—what is knowledge, anyway? There is surely no virtue in mere newness. Discarded knowledge is not knowledge, and never can have been knowledge in the true sense of the word. It was a mistake, an error. So new knowledge when displaced by newer knowledge is thereby proved to have been erroneous.

But, is science, then, made up only of an endless chain of deceptions and illusions? That is what its enemies might affirm on the basis of what they would call its own admissions shown in a series of mutually disqualifying publications.

The man of science, least of all men, can afford to throw stones, or assume an ad captandum air about knowledge, or pique himself on the finality of his reasoning and his theories. In proportion as he possesses the real scientific spirit he will believe and assert that there is only one kind of knowledge, which is neither "old" nor "new," but which continually fleets before its pursuer and so remains ever timely. What is called new knowledge is only another view, another way of looking at the dealing with, the unchangeable facts of the universe.

The recent history of atomic and electronic theories shows how rapidly the new displaces the old without change in the underlying facts. Only a year or so ago the "planetary atom" was the gonfalon of the "new knowledge," now the vibrating atom, or whatever it may be called, has shaken it, and perhaps thrown it out, so that the confusion of theories and observations on this point is so entangled and full of contradiction that Dr. C. J. Davisson finds no better way to describe the situation than by saying: "We must believe not only that there is a certain sense in which rabbits are cats, but there is also a sense in which cats are rabbits."

Thrift

IN ANNOUNCING that its postal savings system, during 18 years, had handled more than fifteen thousand million dollars, the Postoffice Department recently cited how the early antagonism of banks to this primary school of thrift had waned.

Today, in his postoffices, Uncle Sam has $160,000,000 of savings, depositors drawing interest at 2 per cent. The limit for each depositor is $2,500, which is too low. Postmaster General New has asked the Congress to raise it to $5,000.

Great Britain has an even better system. It has 27,000 local associations which sell on the installment plan interest-bearing savings certificates each worth about $4. Every Britisher who can spare a penny or more at a time is solicited to save. Since the war the total thus realized is four thousand million dollars—all of it new capital for the reinvigoration of industries at home and for lending abroad to potential buyers of British goods.

No doubt if we were as sorely pressed as Britain has been our practice of thrift would also be intensified. Having more, our people naturally and properly spend more.

Yet we need a better appreciation of the saving habit. It is the basis of enduring prosperity and progress.

That Fighting Instinct

CERTAIN objects in your home bring heated discussion.

You make no effort to avoid them.

When in a quarrelsome mood you are sure to mention them.

You know beforehand what will be the result, but you don't care.

Each quarrel on these subjects becomes more bitter, more violent.

After your fit of meanness has had vent and you have had time to think things over, you feel ashamed and resolve never to provoke another argument of this kind.

This is a good resolution if you keep it.

But sometimes you wonder why it is that after things have been tranquil in your home for so long you seem to want a change.

You want to stir things up.

There is a desire for a quarrel.

You can't explain it, you have never been able to see where any good ever came of your indulgence in periodic scrapping.

If you are sensible you will get rid of your combatativeness in some other fashion.

Keeping a punching bag in the attic, but spare the ones at home.

You will be happier, and others will enjoy life more.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

A Mood

I WOULD not be fettered by trappings rare,
By the gauds of the gems of earth,
For I would be free that my feet might fare
Down the highways of joy and mirth.

Yes, I would go free as the singing wind
That frolics the whole day through
With no care for the loveliness left behind
In the rapture of beauties new.

For this life, with its mazes of duties and debts,
Is a toy for a brave man's mood,
And I would go free from its foolish frets
As the wind goes free, through the wood.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

IT'S mighty hard for some women to get any kind of a compliment out of their husbands. A guy will tell a girl all kinds of dizzy things about herself, but after he marries her he's afraid he'll run out of adjectives for the other women if he uses them all up on his wife.

Well, this here Mrs. Jones was fishing for a compliment. "You kinda thought I was different from the other girls you knew, didn't you, John?"

"Why, yes, you was different."

"Wasn't that why you married me?"

"Yes, you're right there."

"Well, tell me then, how was I different from the other girls you knew?"

"Why, you'd marry me and they wouldn't."

A New Breed

DOROTHY had always wanted a dog, and at last a kind and sympathetic uncle gave her one.

There was a certain amount of discussion among the family with regard to the animal's breed. The uncle declared the dog was an Airedale.

Meeting a friend of her father one evening while taking her pet for a walk, Dorothy had an anxious moment.

"What ever is it?" the other had asked. "A pup, Dorothy? What kind, my dear?"

The little girl tried hard to remember what her uncle had said.

"He's a ne'er-do-well," she replied, after a long pause.

Off the Target

IT WAS a very hot day on the rifle range, and the instructor had just about had enough of it.

There was one more man to fire, and closing his eyes, this individual loosed off his 10 rounds in less than a minute.

"Have I got a bull?" he asked, when he had finished.

The instructor, who had just put down his glasses, glowered.

"Oh, yes," he returned, "you got a bull all right, but I expect you will have to pay for it. It's lying dead in the next field."

Misunderstood

THE mistress of the house gazed at her new maid in great consternation.

"Do you really mean to say that you don't know what a geyser is?" she asked for the second time.

The new maid nodded her head.

"But I thought you were told before the other girl left?" insisted her employer.

"Well, ma'am, she did say as how the old geyser needed polishing up a bit," explained the maid tactlessly, "but I thought she was speakin' disrespectful of you."

The Black Sheep

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A woman has written to me, wanting to know what to do in the case of her son. She says he won't go to school, he won't do useful work and tends generally to consort with dissolute companions.

I may as well confess right now that I cannot answer her question. I know all the arguments about love and kind treatment and psychological study and patience, and so on, and I know also that there are cases that none of these things fit.

I do not suppose there is one family among my readers unable to confess to some sort of black sheep; some boy or girl that persists in going wrong in spite of everything.

Much is said of preachers' sons who turn out badly and the implication is that they have been treated too strictly in their youth, so that in later years they rebel.

Some say that children should be carefully disciplined and rigidly instructed, but such children have not always done so well in later years.

In fact, I have known the children of utterly loose and careless parents to turn out to be strict models of propriety, and others who have had every advantage of favorable environment go swiftly to the dogs.

Some say that children should be given their freedom and allowed to do as they please, but that does not always work.

When I was young and my children were little I had some very fine theories about child training, but now that I am older I am willing to confess that the whole problem is too much for me.

You may talk about your heredity and about a child inheriting the bad traits of his grand uncle and about environment and about the whole trouble with children being that they are not properly disciplined. All this is very interesting reading. But the fact remains that the irresponsible and wayward sheep is in almost every family of my acquaintance.

Not long ago a prominent banker showed me a letter he had from his son, telling him that if he did not receive some money immediately he would commit suicide. The reply of the banker may not have been judicious, but it was interesting. He said to his son, "I have no money to send you, but don't let that deter you."

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

SMILINGLY George Bernard Shaw tells us that young married people should take their vacations separately, if they have wearied of each other. But after people have lived together long enough, he says they get beyond the stage where they see too much of each other and they don't want to separate. He means when they have lived together TOO long they get that way. It is that first hundred years! After that they cease to want anything, the motto being: "Try and get it."

Arkansas City, Kan., presents for your edification the latest things in flappers—a girl swineherd.

Carefully powdered and rouged, wearing neat overalls and a picturesque hat with a very wide brim to keep the sun off, the girl drove a big herd of hogs into the city.

They probably had to stop often while she powdered her nose, but time doesn't figure.

You remember the snappy city fellow who looked at the farmer's hogs eating corn, and then, being right on his toes, made the suggestion that it would be better to hull the corn before he gave it to the hogs.

"Why?" asked the farmer.

"Oh, it would save so much time," said the city feller.

"Time?" and the farmer laughed. "What's time to a hog?"

Queen Elizabeth's nightdown sold in London the other day for $625.

The "state night gown"—(whatever that may be)—of Charles I, sold for $500.

A lot of American Queens pay hundreds of dollars for nighties, but can you picture an American King wearing a nightie embroidered $500 worth?

Whoops, my dear!

Eileen Sedgwick played serials so long the producers wouldn't give her anything else to play. So she changed her name and got the chance she was after.

I know a girl who hasn't ever had any matrimony at all, and she is going to call herself Peggy Joyce and see what happens.

Paul Poiret has quit the dressmaking business. He says there isn't any elegance any more; that women go in for sport clothes and care most about comfort. There is no profit now that there is no elegance.

I'll bet a lot of husbands would like to know then, where DOES the money go?

A girl called Kittens sues a wealthy man for $100,000. He promised her, she says, to give her that much in installments. She wants to tell all, but the Supreme Court judge had a heart and wouldn't let her.

A couple more "heart balm" suits today.

If the girls would only get together and write a book on how to live with without working, it would repay them.

Train Their Voices

THE "talking movie" is being much talked about. Producers think it will greatly increase attendance on the pictures. That may be so. But it won't unless movie actors and actresses learn to speak as well as to "register emotion."

A voice has as much personality as a face; perhaps more. As long as it is not allowed to interfere with the face, all goes well, but when the face on the screen is fascinating, and the voice uncultivated and feeble, the contrast makes the audience either uncomfortable or amused. Neither state of mind good for the box office.
